CLARENCE DAVIS

Tam Clarence Davis...

It's a theater performance which has played before thousands during nearly one dozen years on stage. But seldom does the audience exceed one or two persons.

There is one actor. He's an older gentleman whose only props are his notebook and a smile. He visits some rooms, but strides quickly past others. This mission is highly organized. "I don't want any mistakes around here," he said ear-

Nobody bothers him much except for an occasional "Good morning, Mr. Davis." They know that he has important business around Northwest Community Hospital.

And there's never enough time.

He was nearly finished on the second floor. Now, Mr. Davis approached yet another room, hesitated momentarily outside, then pushed the door ajar and burst inside.

Mike Klein's people

"GOOD MORNING, I am Clarence Davis, one of the hospital's patient visitors," the gentleman told his audience in a voice crisp and strong. "Just stopped by to see if we're taking good care of you."

One woman reacted quickly and you knew that she was feeling pretty good. "Oh, they're doing their darndest!"

Clarence noticed that perhaps the other woman had been dozing. "Did I wake you up?" he wanted to know.

Not really, the woman responded. She had only been taking a little nap.

Clarence usually asks about the food, which even he describes as "edible," and better on Sundays. He wants to know whether their room has been kept clean.

"I do have one complaint," the first woman said. "They could have given me some more wine yesterday.'

She was talking about her dinner wine, of course. It came with Sunday's lobster.

CLARENCE SAID he has been a natient at Northwest and that it helps to know the staff. That's how he got extra wine once without even asking. "In fact, two doctors told me I needed the wine," Clarence told the listening women. "That's the kind of doctors I like!" These discussions are usually the same How's the food? . . . Keeping the place clean? . . . Hope you get well and hurry home.

But you are continually impressed with his sincerity.

Clarence walked a bit further down the hallway, then veered into a room where the woman was staring out the second floor window. "Good morning, I am Clarence Davis...'

They talked a few minutes All the regular topics were covered. She seemed distraught. There were many

Thoroughbreds won't run July 4 at race track

Arlington Park Race Track's request for Sunday racing on July 4 has been rejected by the Arlington Heights Village Board because trusttes feared a precedent for future Sunday racing would be set.

Thomas Rivera, a racetrack official, told the board Monday the special racing date was being requested because of the nation's Bicentennial celebration and because it is the 50th season of racing at the track.

New state racing laws permit Sunday racing with the permission of the municipality in which the track is lo-

Plans to run the American Derby on July 4 will now have to be abandoned. Rivera said track officials already had begun talking with CBS about televising the race nationally. "We have grouped all of our promotions and advertising around this special celebration," Rivera said. Arlington Park also was planning to have a special Bicentennial celebration at the park that day, with bands and picnic areas, he said.

RIVERA SAID the track probably would have lost money with the proposed July 4 racing. The Village of Arlington Heights would have received more than $3,500 that day with its new 10 cent head tax on each paid admission, he said.

River's request for racing on July 4 was denied in a somewhat unorthodox manner. The board first voted 5-4 against a motion to deny the request, then voted 5-4 against tabling the matter and finally voted 5-4 against approving the request. The deciding vote was cast by Trustee Alfred Barboro Jr., who was sworn in immediately prior to Monday's meeting.

Barboro voted against denying the park's request, but also voted against approving the request on the final mo-and public works department.

The meeting begins at 8 p.m. at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

The public works department's budget shows a decrease of two emon the proposed budgets for the fire playes with the elimination of a foreman and a buildings repairman.

> Last week during a hearing on the proposed police department budget it was learned Hanson had rejected requests for 11 additional patrolmen and five more cars.

The proposed budget does call for the purchase of a new aerial fire truck, which Hayden made a plea for at budget hearings last year. Purchase of the new truck was approved by the village board in June. Federal revenue sharing funds will be used to purchase the $158,000 vehicle.

Patty accuses SLA of 2 closet 'rapes'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) - Patricia Hearst told the jury at her trial Tuesday two of the male kidnapers, Donald Defreeze and Willie Wolfe, forced her into "sexual intercourse" in a tiny closet as an introduction into the ways of the terrorist cult.

Gulping for breath and her voice quavering, the 21-year-old Miss Hearst said one of the woman members of the Symbionese Liberation Army told her it was time for her to "know what it was like being in the ceil."

"She told me I was going to sleep with Willie Wolfe, so I did," Miss Hearst said.

On the witness stand for a second day, Miss Hearst said she was told over and over that she was going to be killed and was forced to make a tape recording in which she berated her parents, saying they didn't care whether she was freed or not.

Defense lawyer F., Lee Bailey suddenly introduced the subject of her virtual rape about a month after her kidnaping while she was kept bound and blindfolded in the closet in the house where she was held.

Ford tells major intelligence reforms

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Ford Tuesday placed all intelligence operations under the management of CIA director George Bush, and created an independent, three-man White House board to safeguard against intelligence-gathering abuses.

Announcing a series of major reforms at the outset of a nationally broadcast news conference at the White House, the President asked Congress to outlaw assassination attempts by U.S. intelligence agencies against foreign heads of state and to make it a federal crime for agency employes to leak secret information.

Ford also said ne was issuing a comprehensive set of legally binding guidelines intended to provide "stringent protections for the rights of American citizens" against illegal domestic intelligence activities.

Acting after months of widespread allegations of illegal or questionable CIA activities in Congress and the press, the President made clear he would retain ultimate control for U.S intelligence

Arlington rejects July 4 horse races

There will be no horse racing at Arlington Park Race Track July 4. The Arlington Heights Village Board has rejected the track's request to have racing Sunday, July 4. New state racing laws permit communities with tracks to allow Sunday racing. Park officials had planned to run the American Derby July 4 as part of a celebration of the track's 50th anniversary and the Bicentennial. The request was denied in a 5-4 vote.

Elk Grove GOP backs Thompson

The Elk Grove Township Republican Organization has endorsed subernatorial candidate James Thompson and lieutenant governor candidate David O'Neal in the March 16 primary. The organization endorsed Thompson unanimously and O'Neal with just two dissenting votes, said Elk Grove Committeeman Carl Hansen. Thompson, the former U.S. attorney, is running against Winnetka businessman Richard Cooper. O'Neal, St. Clair County sheriff, is running against Joan Anderson, a commissioner for the Metropolitan Sanitary District. The Elk Grove organization also agreed to make no endorsement in the race between President Gerald Ford and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan in the primary.

Village to try to get on TV show

Buffalo Grove, undaunted by the failure of another Northwest suburb's lack of success, may try to give the village national exposure on a televised game show. Last week Palatine officials considered applying for a chance to appear on the ABC-TV network's "Almost Anything Goes" game show, but found out that the village's 28,000 population put it well above the show's 20,000 limit. In the show, neighboring villages compete for the right to meet in a regional championship. Buffalo Grove Trustee John Marienthal has applied to the show's producers and now needs support from local civic groups. "I thought it would be a fantastic way to bring the community together and put Buffalo Grove on the map," Marienthal said. If Marienthal is successful, some of Buffalo Grove's 18,400 residents may be powdering their noses for the television camera by summer.

Budget cuts asked for hospitals

The Cook County Hospital governing commission budget ought to be cut by $8 million to $10 million in order to limit the amount of property tax increase required to support the hospitals, Cook County Comr. Mary McDonald said Tuesday. Mrs. McDonald said she and other suburban Republican commussioners intend to submit proposals to cut the hospital commission's $172 million budget when the budget is submitted for adoption today. The budget contains a request for a property tax increase of 6.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation. Mrs. McDonald, a persistent critic of spending by the hospital commission, said she expects to see cuts that will decrease, but not eliminate, the property tax increase needed to support the budget. The county board legally only has the power to cut the budget total, but cannot specify what areas of the budget must

Gene Leonard

GOP worker named to RTA

Bremen Township GOP Committeeman Gene Leonard Tuesday was appointed by the suburban Cook County Commissioners to the Regional Transportation Authority Board.

The approval came despite the objections of the president of the Ripon Society, a Republican policy-making organization.

The six suburban commissioners, all Republicans, approved the appointment of Lenard with two abstentions after hearing. Peter Baugher, president of the Chicago Ripon Society, ask that they hold bearings to interview candidates for the RTA

Leonard will replace Joseph Tecson, who was recently appointed by the suburban commissioners to replace Comr. Floyd Fulle on the Cook County County Board. Leonard was one of 30 candidates in addition to Tecson who interviewed for the county board post.

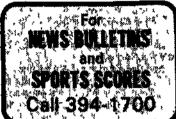

Leonard was opposed by a number of GOP leaders, including former Gov. Richard Ogilvie, as unqualified for the county board. Recently Ogilvie said he favored another candidate for

ABA gives lawyers permission to advertise prices

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) - The American Bar Association Tuesday for the first time in its history authorized lawyers to advertise limited price and other information in the yellow pages of the telephone book.

The change in the ABA Canon of Ethics, first passed in 1908, left in doubt whether lawyers could cooperale with consumer groups publishing a directory of services and charges. the subject of a law suit by Consumers Union pending in federal court

But on a voice vote, after three hours of debate, the canon was changed to permit publication of a lawyer's standard fee for an initial consulation in the yellow pages of the telephone book and in "reputable law lists or legal directories."

Lawyers were also allowed to advertise their office hours, legal education, credit terms and fields of concentration.

The action came in response to a Supreme Court ruling last June re-legal profession.

Ironically, the Reuben H. Donnelly Co., publishers of the yellow pages in much of the nation, said it does not accept specific price advertising. Presumably, the same restriction would apply to legal advertising. Other information such as credit terms could be advertised.

Changes approved by the 340 member House of Delegates must be separately considered by state bar associations before they are effective. State

But ABA President Lawrence E. Walsh told reporters after the vote he believed lawyers could cooperate with consumer groups if the legal directory included only information authorized by the new canon.

Lewis Van Dusen, a Philadelphia lawyer who chaired the committee reviewing advertising guidelines, disagreed. He suggested that a consumer legal guide must obtain ABA approval, costing $750, before it could enlist March 15 the cooperation of lawyers.

The Consumers Union suit charges that First Amendment rights of consumers were offended by old rules forbidding any advertising of price information. Since ABA officials were themselves unclear about the results of Tuesday's vote, it was uncertain whether the new canon would eliminate the need for further court action in the Consumers Union case.

headed by the President.

The special White House board created to report on intelligence agency abuses will be headed by Undersecretary of State Robert D. Murphy. former chief of secret diplomatic operations in World War II, and also will include former Army Sec. Stephen Ailes and economist Leo Cherne.

Ford said it was important to have a strong intelligence agency and as President, "I will not be a party to the dismantling of the CIA and the other intelligence agencies."

Pressed further about Bush's qualifications, Ford said, "I think he has the intelligence to do the job and the experience in foreign policy."

In the end, Ford said, "the final and ultimate reponsibility falls on the shoulders of the President." Ford said he would take that responsibility.

ASKED WHETHER placing responsibility for the CIA in the White House might not lead to abuses, Ford said, 'I can assure you it (the responsibility) will be handled in the most appropriate way."

Regarding the elections in November, Ford said he believed that "anyone to the right of me cannot win the election." He said he was not referring specifically to Ronald Reagan in that statement — that there are candidates of both parties philosophically to the right of him

The President cited two main issues on which he differs with the former California governor: Social Security and the Reagan plan to trim federal spending by $90 billion.

"I WAS GREATLY encouraged by the two days I have just spent in Florida." the President said. "The crowds were large and enthusiastic and I was encouraged by that."

Home-rule powers tested, budget planning at stake

Suit seeks return of suburbs' veto at county board

by WANDALYN RICE

Suburban commissioners on the Cook County Board will regain their veto power over the county's multimillion dollar budget if a suit filed in Cook County Circuit Court by an Evanston attorney is successful.

The suit also may have major effects on the way the county will be able to use the home-rule power granted under the 1970 Illinois Constitution, a power widely believed to give the county board almost unlimited taxing authority.

The suit, filed by John T Ailen Jr, challenges the legality of county board action last fall, which changed the requirement for approving the county's expenditures from a twothirds to a simple majority

Under the two-thirds majority, which was required by state law, the six suburban Republican commissioners had a veto over county expenditures, even if the expenditures had the unanimous support of the county board's 10 Chicago Democrats.

THE SUBURBAN Republicans had won that veto power in 1974 when a federal court ruled that the "one-man, one-vote" requirement meant the suburbs must have six members on the beard

Last fail the county board's Democratic majority changed the twothirds requirement, saying the county's home-rule power gave it the right to overrule the state statute with a county ordinance. The Republican commissioners opposed the action.

Thomas Brannigan, Allen's attorney, said the suit challenging the ordinance is a class action suit on behalf of all the taxpayers in the county.

Brannigan said he will argue that the ordinance denies suburban taxpayers equal protection of the law under the U.S. constitution, that the county's home-rule power is not broad enough to allow it to overrule a state statute and that proper notice of the proposed ordinance was not given before it was approved.

In a brief filed with the suit, Brannigan says the action deprives the suburban commissioners and their constituents "of an equally effective voice and meaningful representation on the Cook County board '

BRANNIGN SAID if the court rules the county cannot overrule a state statute under home rule, "it would change pretty substantially what home-rule units think they can do." He said he will argue that because the Illinois Supreme Court held that the county could not collect property taxes in four installments, because a state law called for two installments, that the county does not have the power to overrule a state law. A spoksman for County Board Pres George W. Dunne said the county

Suburban commissioners, who have been studying the possibility of their own suit challenging the county board action ,said they are studying the suit to see whether they can join it.

COMR. CARL HANSEN of Elk

Grove Village said, "We have to make sure the suit is strong enough to support our position." He said studying the legal options open to the suburban commissioners under the suit "is an item of No. 1 priority '

Brannigan said he does not know what the suburban commissioners can do to support the suit. "They are welcome to do anything they can," he

Brannigan said he and Allen are prepared to appeal the case to the state Supreme Court if necessary. County officials have until early March to file replies to the suit before arguments can be heard by Circuit Court Judge Walter P. Dahl.

Happy 89th birthday, Arlington!

by JOE SWICKARD

Happy Birthday, Arlington Heights. As a village, you're now 89 years old: It was on this date back in 1887 when the village fathers started taking on airs and changed the name of the place from Dunton (after its founder) to the more "high-toned" Arlington Heights. The incorporation vote was 126 to 34, and the town was on its way.

In the ensuing 89 years, some things just don't change in Arlington Heights.

FOR EXAMPLE, streetlights were a big topic in the community's early official deliberations. In 1893 the first 50 lamps (fed with gasoline) were installed, and it wasn't long before there were complaints.

Because there wasn't a Scarsdale yet, the controversy centered around people who wanted more street lights. They were soon appeased with the addition of 75 more fixtures around the town.

Even this week, a village board committee will meet to wrangle with the street lighting question in Scarsdale.

An event in 1902 was to pave the way for future heated village board debates. That was the year the first concrete sidewalk was poured in

Mrs. Schroeder said she didn't otic. Citizens that live in that area are dent of the area, he found it "strange

The last village election was highlighted with spirited debates on what areas of the village should have the sidewalks and who should pay for WATER PROBLEMS are nothing new to Arlington Heights, either. Consider the newspaper account of 1902: 'The engineer on the Arlington Heights waterworks must be a blun-derbluss. The reservoir caved in Wednesday night."

Today, the village bans lawn sprinkling on certain summer days, and the village and other municipalities are trying to find a way to bring Lake Michigan water to the area.

During the winter of 1893-94, residents banded together to augment the three-man police force. They formed the Citizens Protective League.

In the winter of 1975-76, residents are being asked by the police to join the Neighborhood Watch program desagned to keep an eye on vandals, burglars and rowdies.

There was imaginative municipal financing throughout the village's history. But some of the methods are not exactly endorsed procedures today.

IN 1927 IT WAS revealed the village got a cut of the take from the local slot machine racket. The officials didn't line their pockets, though.

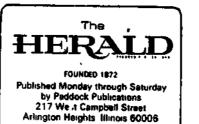

Instead they bought a new police sound car, 500 feet of fire hose and put a new roof on the village bandstend.

It is unlikely that source of revenue will be suggested during the current hearings on the municipal budget.

If some malcontents are still looking for the heights of Arlington Heights, they can reread the fulsome praise that greeted the renaming 89 years ago.

Arlington Heights, it was noted, "is an especially appropriate one, for it is located on high ground . . . and its residents enjoy the full benefits of the pure health-giving air of the country, unvitiated by swamps and vapors."

After 89 years, the town is still unvitiated by those vapors and and still a nice place to live.

Overpass upgrade for Rte. 72

A $4.5 million overpass improvement for Ill. Rte. 72 at the Northwest Tollway was announced Tuesday by Gov. Daniel Walker as part of a $59 million highway construction pro-

The governor said the program calls for repairing or rebuilding more than 100 miles of roads, streets and highways, and the improvement of numerous bridges and intersections.

Walker said the program will be in addition to the area's share of regular road programs which will be announced in June.

The III. Rte. 72 overpass improvement will widen the bridge over the tollway from two lanes to four lanes, Walker said.

TWO OTHER AREA projects included in the program are $750,000 for improvement of the intersection of Irving Park and Barrington roads and $820,000 for improvement of Irving Park and Rohlwing roads in Schaumburg Township.

While some of the work will be started immediately, major construction projects will not begin until July.

"I am proposing that we start this summer to cut away at the backlog of repairs on neglected streets, some of which are 40 years old. These renovations must be undertaken now if we are to have quality transportation in the metropolitan Chicago aica, Walker said.

In addition to the local improvements, Walker also announced plans to spend $8.5 million to resurface, widen and improve intersections along Cicero Avenue in Chicago.

WALKER AIDES said Monday the project had no connection with the Walker feud with Mayor Richard J. Daley over construction of the Crosstown Expressway, which closely parallels Cicero Avenue.

Funds for the project will come from a special state bond issue, which was to have been in a joint Chicago-Illinois road project. However, Walker aides said Chicago failed to meet all

The project also will involve construction of bus turnout lanes at a number of locations, to allow other vehicles to move past buses stopping to load or unload passengers, and the construction of 100 bus shelters.

Crane urges cuts in U.N. support

U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, has told a congressional committee the United States should cut its payments to the United Nations from 26 per cent to slightly more than 5 per cent of the cost of operation.

Crane's comments came during a subcommittee hearing of the U.S. House International Relations Committee. He said the proposal would save the U.S. about $350 million annually.

Crane has pushed for a U. S.-backed change in the funding procedures for the United Nations since 1971.

In his testimony, Crane noted while the balance of power in the United Nations has shifted dramatically, the burden of financial support has remained on the same shoulders.

"Such a situation is an invitation to political demagoguery and violation of the U. N. charter," the congressman said. He cited the U. N. resolution which branded Zionism as a form of racism and the expulsion of Nationalist China as examples.

Under the payment formula proposed by Crane, third world "nonaligned countries" would pay 20 per cent of the U. N. budget. Such countries now pay only about 3 per cent of the cost.

The cost to China and India also would increase.

"Such a change in the assessment formula is badly needed and long overdue. By taking the first step and unilaterally reducing our contribu-tions to 5.6 per cent, we would not only save the taxpayers money, but we would put the U. N. on notice, without wrecking it or withdrawing from it, that it cannot expect to command adequate financial support unless it exercises more discretion and acts with a greater sense of responsibility," Crane said.

The way we see it

We support deficit plans

A growing number of suburers may wish to consider. ban school districts are forecasting million dollar deficits. With that glum prospect in mind, boards of education are beginning to wrestle with major decisions involving tax hikes, school closings and program cutbacks.

The plight of many suburban school districts, under the pressure of declining enrollment and reduced state aid, is a long-term problem that will not be remedied easily.

The future includes a projected $3.9 million deficit in Arlington Heights Dist. 25 by 1984; bankruptcy in River Trails Dist. 26 by 1977; a $1 million deficit next year in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21; and more than $2 million deficits in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 and Elk Grove Township Dist. 59. The pattern extends to nearly every district in the Northwest suburbs.

One district. East Maine Dist. 63. has taken measures already to prevent an estimated $500,000 deficit next year. It's a step oth-

Dist. 63, which serves the unincorporated portion of Maine Township, began discussing its bleak financial future last August. By January, board members had enrollment and demographic studies, budget studies and a list of options to increase revenue and decrease spending.

Last week the Dist. 63 board informally agreed on about $800,000 in budget cuts ranging from increasing book rental and lunch fees to decreasing teaching, custodial and secretarial

The initial cuts will prevent a deficit next year, and the board is already discussing holding a tax rate increase referendum, closing schools and selling its vacant property to prevent future money problems.

Dist. 63 is far ahead of many Northwest suburban school districts that are just now seeking solutions to their September financial woes. It is an example of a farsighted board and administration and good planning.

A conflict is resolved as Hug quits park post

Charles Hug, Des Plaines city attorney, announced last week that he will resign from his post Park District — a move that was long overdue.

before being selected city attorney and consistently said he would resign should his double work load become a conflict of interest.

Last week, after the city and park district were named as defendants in a lawsuit, Hug stepped down from the park district post.

Although we don't question Hug's integrity, we do feel he was ignoring a continuing conas attorney for the Des Plaines flict by being employed by two governing bodies that frequently deal with one another. Prior to Hug held the park district job the lawsuit. Hug faced another conflict when city officials were negotiating with the park district over acquiring land.

> Hug's decision was a good one and we can only add that it is about time. With his second job out of the way, Hug can now give his full attention to the fulltime job with the city.

Some tuition necessary in college education

No one likes to pay tuition for the privilege of going to college. but paying a reasonable amount of tuition to attend a state college or university is inevitable if education is to continue to thrive in Illinois.

Gov. Walker, however, apparently doesn't think so. Last week he announced he would reject tuition increases proposed last month for state universities.

At stake is an undergraduate tuition hike of $60 a year and graduate tuition of $90 a year. Walker argues that the tuition increases would be especially painful to middle income fami-

But Walker should consider the alternatives: another undesirable cutback in programs or a tax increase, in which all of us will have to pay more to support public higher education.

As Walker has promised to slash tuition, he's also slashed in the past other forms of financial support for higher education. With such budget-cutting, Illinois' colleges and universities have found themselves trapped with no other way to raise needed funds. We think a moderate tuition increase is a reasonable alternative - and we urge the governor to change his mind and support it.

This fat and sweet-free diet requires discrimination, determination and desperation!

Fact 'lack' hit

It's unfortunate that The Herald regards Betty Ford's views favoring intrauterine murder as "refreshing." Actually, it takes no talent to choose abortion's easy solution; what Americans have a right to expect (and are not receiving) from our First Lady is the example of compassion, responsibility and personal morality, and the courage to find alternatives to the slaughter of the innocent.

Betty believes that legal abortion is "great" because it gives the poor as much opportunity to kill their young as the rich. Using her demented logic, should we therefore supply heroin and hunting rifles to the poor, because the

The Herald may appreciate Betty's "candor" because her views coincide with its echtorial policy. But if "truth" were really important to The Herald, it would have long ago published photos of aborted infants and in-depth interviews with pro-life leaders, so that readers could be accurately informed on this important issue. Instead, The Herald - and Betty - continue their refrain: "Our minds are made up. Don't confuse us with the facts."

Mrs. William Anderson Arlington Heights

An error corrected

In response to an article on the front page of The Herald dated Feb. 13, a point was made that one of the five finalists for Schaumburg's Outstanding Young Woman (Nancy Larson) has not been a member of Volunteers In Action since November.

As I understand the competition, it is for all things done during the calendar year 1975. So, even if she hasn't been a member since November, it appears that she should and has been credited for her time spent in 1975 up to November. Unless that point is made, people would think she was judged improperly.

Penny Dietrich Schaumburg

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Feb. 13 story was an attempt to correct an earlier story, based on erroneous information, which indicated Mrs. Larson was currently president of the association. A straightforward correction should have been printed on an inside page, listing the name of the current president. The editor regrets compounding the error.

Unfortunately, the referendum for other educational fund and operational and maintenance fund programs. Obviously, Dist 54 has already spent too much for new schools and alternate plans for further use of the existing buildings have not been explored or examined to any degree.

Now, in this time of belt tightening, something has to give. The taxpayer is getting it from all sides and we are rethinking the cost of state and federal aid to our schools. These additional moneys do not necessarily increase academic achievement. Other alternatives are needed

Right now, there are two million children in 168 districts using their schools more fully, on the 12-month basis. Why must we keep on building schools when they are used only nine months and only 2,600 out of 17,000

One-third more space in our schools, shorter review times than those necessary under a 12-week summer, more money for teachers choosing to work more days a school year, more time for lesson planning and material gathering as there are periodic breaks in the calendar, more sharing of facilities and materials by the schools, library and park districts and more of an individualized program for our children as the kindergarteners start four times a year on their birthdays and students can be accelerated or retained onequarter year according to need

Why has Dist 54 not looked into the matter more purposefully?

Quality of life a target

ACTION still at work

by MURRAY OLDERMAN SAN FRANCISCO - (NEA)

Around the conference table, where the state directors of Region IX of ACTION are holding their budget meeting, Jess Sixkiller is known as the "Outhouse King"

Jess's territory is the state of Arizona, and every time he cruises through the south part of Tucson, a look of satisfaction softens his dark Indian face. Because of him and his volunteers in the federally sponsored program, a ramshackle house on a potholed street at least has indoor plumbing.

"We have just now completed renovating 150 outhouses," he says proudly, "in south Tucson. We designed modern outhouses and put in plumbing and attached them to buildings "

That is not precisely a giant step for mankind, but it is symbolic of the work Jess and his director cohorts do to upgrade the quality of life in the western United States.

Jess (an older cousin of footballer Sonny Sixkiller, and a full-blooded Cherokee Indian) isn't a complete altruist. Nor is Chick Tooker, who organized volunteers to process and relocate Vietnamese refugees at Camp Pendleton in southern California. The same goes for Willie Hall, who has rehabilitated ex-convicts to work with recent prison parolees in northern California. And Mike Gale. who recruited immigrant nurses in Hawaii to combat the health problems from the flood of Far East immigrants.

THESE MEN are all civil servants, being paid an average of $25,000 a year to administer social services to their state sectors under ACTION, which was created July 1, 1971, to embrace American volunteer groups such as the Peace Corps and VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America) in one federal agency directly responsible to the White House.

But Jess and Willie and Chuck and Mike - and their regional bosses at this conference table, Don Brown and Patrick Twohig - are not your usual breed of bureaucrat. Mike and Willie and Chick were originally Peace Corps volunteers in far-flung outposts such as Venezuela, Ethiopia and the

IT'S NOT DEALING with peanuts, either. The budget for Region IX, whose director is Don Brown, a former All-American swimmer and vice president of U.S. International University (San Diego), is $25 million. More than 17,000 volunteers fan out throughout the states of California, Arizona, Nevada and Hawaii. "We can move quite quickly," says Patrick Twohig, the regional program manager, "in bringing something about because we aren't bogged down by layers of bureaucracy. The men here are directly on top of their state programs.'

Twohig is a former priest, a native of County Cork, Ireland, and lives with his wife and two children on Tralee Way in San Rafael - "I liked the address

Good morning, I am Clarence

This would be his final stop on the second floor. Two men were recuperating from surgery. They seemed to be having a jolly time. "Neither one of you looks like you ought to be here," Clarence told

THE THREE MEN laughed quite a lot. Clarence's usual speech quickly went by the board. One man told him they had been palying cribbage.

"There's no end to the experiences I have here," Ciarence said back in the hallway. "You can appreciate that now with just this little walk."

It's a little difficult convincing Clarence Davis that he should not be bashful about his volunteer work. He begs, "Please, please don't let any of this go in like I'm bragging. I'm afraid of hurting anyone else's feelings." But Clarence is good people. There should be many more like him. Donna Dickey and Joe Goddard would surely agree. They are Northwest Community's other volunteer patient visitors.

The hospital is special to Clarence. "I pretty much owe my life to this place," he said. That's why Clarence helps now. He knows what it means.

Twelve years ago last October, Clarence Davis of Arlington Heights entered Northwest Community, his body ridden with cancer. And they CLARENCE STOPS short today of agreeing that he is a walking miracle . . just more fortunate than most.

At 64 years old, he'd been given another chance. Clarence chose to become involved.

He was the first volunteer patient visitor at Northwest Community. And Clarence began work for the American Cancer Society by also visiting patients at Lutheran General, Alexian Brothers and Holy Family hospitals.

Five years ago, when he was 72, Clarence began a four-year term as a local board member for the American Cancer Society.

Today, he serves as a hoard member and fund-raiser for the Northwest Community Hospital Foundation. And his wife, Helen, has been a volunteer worker for 15 years.

ALL OF THAT is important. But you can easily tell that Clarence most enjoys visiting those patients. Few of them can believe he is 76 years old.

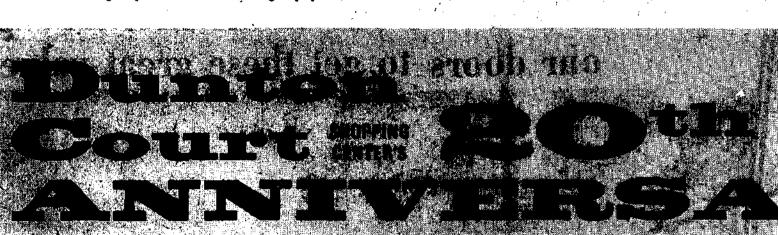

"When you get old, like I am, it's nice to get a feeling that you're needed, that you're still of some use," Clarence said over lunch.

Now it was time to leave the lunchroom. It had been so obvious. Clarence Davis is a man with friends because he has chosen to be a friend. In just a few minutes, they would be hearing him again in the hallways.

(Arlington only)

Now, he would be saying: "Good afternoon, I am Clarence Davis . . . '

Ida V. O'Reilly

Her credo: tell the truth

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

A few years back Ida V. O'Reilly disapproved of the way her village was being governed. She aired her discontent with Wheeling village leaders in a dozen or so probing letters to The Herald's just sticking to her needlework. O'Reilly says she'll "keep an Having worked to bring needed eye on things." She sits on the improvement in Wheeling vil- village ethics board.

SHE HAS NO INTENTION of lage government, Ida V.

Asking such questions as why weren't village officials telling the public what they were doing, Mrs. O'Reilly, a Wheeling homeowner for 20 years, likes to think those letters may have helped bring needed changes in Wheeling.

A former grammar school teacher in Wheeling and ex-telephone company employe as well as mother of three grown children. Ida admits she wasn't always so public-spirited. Her interest in local politics was sparked by daughter Barbara, now a newspaper reporter and a then-newspaper intern covering Wheeling village trustee meetings. Ida attended a few of those meetings. "And I decided some changes should be made!" she said.

As a result of her letters to The Herald, Mrs. O'Reilly was asked to work in a new organization, then called the Wheeling Improvement Party, or WHIP as it came to be known. Its purpose was to bring reform at the local level.

"We wanted to make changes, not throw everybody out," Ida

THAT WAS 1970. WHIP worked hard to achieve its aims, members canvassing street by street to inform residents of their intent.

"Our first attempts were ignorant and amateurish and our party" was thrown off the ballot," Ida recalled. But the group grew smarter and lost by a close margin a second time around, she said.

A year ago, "after the Wheeling scandals had hit," WHIP won five of six seats on the village board. "We hope they will meet our expectations," said Ida. One gets the feeling she's thinking "They'd

Mrs. O'Reilly is on the newly formed Wheeling ethics board, a three-member body which examines the background of any who apply to do work for the village. They check the statutes to see there is no conflict of interest. Open meetings are conducted once a month and the board will act on requests for investigation.

"I am a firm believer in honesty," said Ida. "I taught our kids not to lie as it's better to tell the truth and take the consequences because the truth comes out eventually anyway."

(Besides Barbara her "kids" include a son, Dennis, an attorney, and Marilyn, who works in her husband's computer programming

Generally satisfied with the status of things at village hall now, Ida does have one complaint. She dislikes "those oceans of asphalt" along Dundee and Milwaukee Avenue. "It's ugly, ugly!" she de-

MRS. O'REILLY HAS another suggestion. Using parking space at the K-Mart at Dundee-Rte 83 intersection, she'd like to have the village cut back about 20 feet and plant grass, trees, flowers and

"It could be beautiful and there'd still be plenty of parking space," she said.

"Wheeling's new carillon is nice, but the money could have been better spent on parkways," she added.

Though her health's not been good the past year, Ida O'Reilly has no intention of putting down the gauntlet.

She hopes to resume as a teacher's aide at Stevenson School (she herself taught at Mark Twain and Walt Whitman) and has just recently become active in the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR), though she's been a member since 1942. When she's able, Ida attends activities of the women's group at St. Joseph the Worker Church.

At home she makes hairpin lace, sews, paints and has just begun to needlepoint. Her husband, Dermott, is a retired naval jet mechanic and also a retired postal employe.

Along with her other activities, Ida promises "to keep an eye on things in Wheeling."

Must divorced father pay child's college?

Dear Attorney Martoccio,

I've been meaning to write to you for some time but can't put if off any longer because the problem is now at point where something must be

What I'd like to know is: Must a divorced father pay for his child's college education?

I married a divorced man who had three children. I was not the cause of the divorce, having met him two years after it happened. I mention this because if I were the cause, I would keep my mouth shut. But I am an innocent victim and have had to work in order for my husband to support his ex-wife and the children. I'm not concerned about that since I married him knowing what was in store. But I never thought he would have to go beyond the high school level of paying for his children's education.

TWO OF THEM are now ready for college and their mother insists upon sending them to a small private one that majors in art studies. The school is in the East. I think she should let them attend the state college here and save money. My husband never went to college; neither did I; yet we both must sacrifice, depriving ourselves of so many things we could enjoy. It is another reason why I decided not to have any children so that I woulen't burden him further financially. This makes no impréssion on his former wife who keeps asking for more and

Please answer the question so I'll know what to tell my husband when the subject comes up again in the near future. I'll appreciate it. Thank you. — J.T.

Well, I don't like to use the ole cliche "it all depends," but in this instance, at least, nothing else will do.

While no state requires a child to go beyond high school, the trend is to encourage parents, and at times, order them to pay for a child's college education when the parents are divorced.

The fact that the divorced father must pay does not nullify the fact that his responsibility cannot exceed his ability to pay. There are several other points to consider. One is, do the child's I.Q. and aptitude warrant a college education?

THE OTHERS ARE: How necessary is it that the girls attend a school outside of the area when there is a state school they can attend? Are their talents so distinct that there are no other schools in the area that could provide the training they need?

I think you have a good point there when you say the daughters could save their dad some money by attending the state U. and it does seem unfair for him to pay tuition when he has already paid taxes to provide a college education for his children. But it just might be one of the reasons why a court would deny them the right to have their father pay for a college out of the state.

Your comment that neither you nor your husband attended college and that you both "made it" anyway recalls a debate I heard some time ago on the subject "Is a College Education a Necessity Or a Ripoff?"

THE PREMISE WAS that a college education is a contrived necessity because large companies, who have so many applicants to choose from, see the advantage of not only tightening requirements but using it as a powerful weapon to set a population's style of living.

Some of the arguments against the proposition were that today large companies are faced with more sophisticated methods of operation, strict government regulations, national and international competition and only those who are skilled are qualified to fill the positions.

If the girls need the special training to qualify them for a well paying job, it might be wise to sacrifice a few more years to prepare them more quickly to support themselves. It may be, too, that because of the more specialized training, they would be able to come upon a school-work program in their field.

As I see it, you do have some consolation. Consider this. Your husband did not agree in writing to pay for the college eeucation at the time of the divorce, at which time many parents do as part of the divorce settlement. At least, under the present circumstances there is a chance for your husband either to negotiate with his ex-wife or for the court to deny the children the right to expect their father to pay for a school out of the state.

Cutting cost of vacation lodging

(Second of two parts)

When we went to Williamsburg, Va. last summer, every motel in town seemed to be full, and tourists were commuting from as far away as Rich-But we rented two large, comfortable double rooms at $15 per room per night in the home of Mrs. Pauline Barnes. We had our own private bath, air conditioning, morning coffee, ice, television - even pool privileges at a nearby motel. Mrs. Barnes is one of many Williamsburg residents who increase their own incomes and serve tourists

by providing attractive places to stay at reasonable prices. Some have only a single room to rent. Others have more. The Cedars, for instance, can accommodate 20 guests. AND YOU'LL find similar rooms in private residences and apartments just about everywhere. Of course, you'll want to inspect the facilities and check carefully. But you'll be pleasantly surprised what nice, inexpensive ask around, or visit the local Chamber of Commerce. Tourist homes are just one of many ways that families on vacation can cut lodging costs. Last week's column discussed two more popular methods: staying in budget motels and staying places you can find to stay if you just on a college campus. Still another possibility is hostels. Although hosteling was originally designed for young bikers and hikers, today's expanded program attracts persons of all ages. Some hostels, too, provide family units. For more information, write American Youth Hostels, National Campus, Delaplane, Va.

But perhaps the most appealing way to cut vacation lodging costs is to rent a housekeeping cabin or cottage in a state park.

This is easier to say than to do, as facilities are limited. But with an early start and a bit of luck you just might be able to get a reservation for this summer. Most parks rent by the week, but some accommodations are available for a shorter period.

MANY STATES offer everything from rustic cabins to lodges that can compete with the most modern resorts. Some parks, too, have very large units suitable for family reunions and multi-family vacations. And nearly all parks offer swimming, boating, fishing, horseback riding or other special for the July 1975 issue of Changing attractions and recreational pro-

Where should you stay? Well, we've heard fine comments about Hickory Knob State Park Resort Park in South Carolina, the resort parks of Kentucky and some of the state parks in West Virginia.

But our own experience has been in Virginia, and we've been fortunate enough to spend a week or more at several of the eight state parks there that have cabins for rent. IF YOUR'RE interested in combining a state park vacation with Bicentennial sightseeing, you might want to consider Seashore or Westmoreland. Seashore is not far from the Williamsburg - Yorktown - Jamestown triangle. As for Westmoreland, it's within easy driving distance of the various tourist attractions around Washington and Fredericksburg. In fact, when we were there two or three summers ago, at least one family alternated a day of sightseeing with a day or two if fishing, swimming and boating. If you'd like to know more about state parks or other tourist attractions in Virginia, write the Virginia State Travel Service, 6 North Sixth St., Richmond, 23219, or the Division of Parks, 1201 State Office Building, Richmond 23219.

Exercise helps varicose veins

Would you please let me know if playing tennis, dancing or strennous exercise can be harmful if one has varicose veins. I will be anxiously awaiting your answer, along with two of my friends who also have varicose veins.

No, it will not. If you just have dilated or varicose veins over the outside of the leg and the veins deep inside your leg muscles that you can't see are all right, the exercise will actually help. As you exercise, the venous blood in the legs is milked out of the leg by a massaging action of the contracting leg muscles.

The superficial veins drain into the deeper veins and emptying the deep veins helps drain the superficial ones.

If the superficial veins are all that are involved, you will not have any trouble with significant ankle swelling. When the deep veins are also involved you will have persistent swelling of the involved

The best thing you can do short of surgery for removal of varicose veins is to prevent further dilation of the veins. To do this you need to avoid prolonged standing without moving, and to wear some external support hose. The external pressure helps prevent distention of the veins. Varicose veins develop because of overdistention. The veins have valves inside them to help move the blood uphill back to the heart. When the veins are overstretched, the valves no longer meet and the blood leaks downhill distending the vein and you see the varicose vein. I think it is a good idea for women to wear support hose of some type during pregnancy as the pressure on the deep veins in the pelvis contribute to overstretching and later varicose veins. This is particularly important to women who have a family history of varicose veins.

If you have swelling of your ankles with your varicose veins, then go ahead and exercise, but you might want to wear some support hose while doing it.

For more information on varicose veins send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 5-8. Enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, Texas 78292.

I have had my throld partially removed and am on two grains of thyrold a day, also Hydropress and have been on it for years, one or two a day depending on my pressure. Now I have been put on a medicine that I hate, in juice or not. Not only do I dislike the taste but the cramps and gas that I get from Kaon elizer are mean.

Now I see you tell another person to drink three glasses of orange juice a day. Perhaps I may solve my problems by deing just that but what size glasses please? I have always taken six ounces for breakfast, but that has been it. I'd appreciate any information that could help me get off the awful medicine.

You should follow your doctor's instructions as he knows what your potassium level is. You can discuss other sources of potassium with him and be may agree to let you take three 8-ounce glasses of orange juice a day.

You can also get a lot of potassium in milk. There is almost as much potassium in a quart of milk fortified with two per cent nonfat milk solids as there is in a quart of orange juice.

Salad mold recipe is worth repeating

Dear Dorothy: Some time back you had a molded salad recipe. It consisting of time getatin, cottage cheese, pecans and cucumber. I lost my recipe and wonder if you still have it.—Helen Rebertson

R's worth repeating for everybody. Dissolve a package of lime geletin in one and one-fourth cups of water and add a sprinkling of salt and a tablespoon of vinegar. Peel a large cucumber, chop it up and put in a colander to drain. Then add to the gelatin mixture, Put in a grated small enion, a pound carton of cottage cheese, drained well, one-half cup of mayonnaise and one-half cup of chopped nuts. Put into a greated quart-size mold. In a pretty copper mold, it makes an attractive dish garnished with bibb lettuce, cocktail tomatees or watercress.

Dear Dorothy: I can't understand so many people having so much trouble with white nylons and polyesters becoming dingy or vellow. If these white synthetics would be washed only with white things, they wouldn't have this problem — synthetics are color scavengers.—Henry Scoil

Yes, but people get hurried and think that maybe this "one time" it won't happen. Always does, though, as my mail proves.

Dear Dorothy: Can you tell me how to remove candle wax from my wall-to-wall acrylic carpeting? A candle was turned over and left a large spot on the carpet.—Mildred Hahn

Unless the stain has been messed up, it usually is one of the easiest to get up. Scrape off as much of the wax as possible, thencover with a white blotter, paper napkins or tissue. Apply a barely warm iron to absorb the grease. Any stain remaining ought to come off with a good dry-cleaning solvent.

Butterfly more dapper than moth

Merit Students Encyclopedia to Peter Gaska, 12, of West Altis, Wis., for his

WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE BE-TWEEN A BUTTERPLY AND A MOTH?

Of all the insects, the favorites of most boys and girls are probably the butterflies and moths. The reason for this could be that they are the second largest group of insects, but old Andy suspects that children of all ages love them just because they are so beau-

If you have ever touched the wing of a butterfly or moth, you may have noticed a soft powdery material left on our fingers. If you were to look at this powder under a microscope, you would see that it resembles teeny, tiny scales. These scales cover the wings of butterflies and moths, and overlap each other link shingles on a roof. While there are a number of general ways to tell the moths from the butterflies, to be really sure you would have to remove all the scales and examine the veins of their wings. To keep from marring these beauteous wings, however, let's look at their general differences. First, most butterflies are active during the day, while the moths are generally night fliers. Butterfly bodies are almost always slender and elegant, while moths are more on the plumpish side. When at rest, the moth sits with her fuzzy wings spread out flat. The but-terfly will hold her wings gracefully over her back in tentlike fashion. If you notice one of these insects at rest. creep up very quietly, and you may get a chance to look at her antennae. The butterfly will have slender antennee, to match her siender body, and these end in small knobs. The antennae of the moth are shorter not knobbed, and are often featfierlike.

Other small differences that may help separate one from the other are coloration and the tpe of home the caterpillar builds. Butterflies are by far the mere dapper and colorful of the two. Moths tend to be a bit drab in dress. When the moth caterpillar is ready to undergo the process that will change it into a full-fledged moth, he spins himself a silken cocoon.

Few butterflies spin cocoons. A butterfly spins a button of allk and grips the button with her rear prolegs and hangs head downward. The pupa, which has already formed inside the caterpillar's skin, will wiggle free and attach itself to the silk button. A hard shell, or chrysalis, forms and the pupa then settles down to wait for her

The life cycle of all lepidoptera, or scaly-winged insects, goes through the. same four stages. Life begins for each as an egg. As the egg hatches, the larva, or caterpillar, emerges and begins its part of the cycle. After the eaterpillar has reached its full growth, the pupa, or resting stage, begins. The adult stage represents the completion of the life cycle.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the chronicles of Namia to Eilleen Ratajezak, 11, of Tueson, Ariz., for her

WHAT CAUSES A FEVER?

The human body, a very complex structure, continuously adjusts to the exertions placed upon it. Many of its most remarkable accomplishments happen without our knowledge - such as a fever. When the body tissues are attacked by a sneaky bacterial infection or virus of some sort, a fever occurs to indicate that the body is trying to fight off the pesky invaders. A fever generaly means that the sweat glands are closed off, and the tiny blood vessels near the skin are contracted. This sends more blood to the interior of the body, which brings more white cells on the march to fight the infection. With the rie in body temperature, many becteria are killed. In an infectious disease, fever usually spreads throughout the body, but many times, such as in the case of an infected cut on the finger, the tissues surrounding the cut are feverish, but not the entire body. Doctors can tell a lot about the specific nature of a disease just by calculating the feverS frequency and severity.

To a burglar, that living room light means Mr. Jones is home.

To Mr. Jones in Florida, that's a comforting thought.

How do you keep an empty house from looking empty? With timing devices that turn lights on and off at pre-set times while you're away. To a would-be burglar, your house seems occupied.

Some devices have special light-sensitive cells that automatically turn a light on at dusk and off at dawn. Some allow the on-off cycle to occur several times a night. The craftiest burglar would never suspect.

The best time to use timers is while you're on vacation or on weekends away from home. But it's a good idea to use them any time you're away. A burglar can take advantage of an evening on the town as easily as a two-week vacation.

You can pick up these burglar-proofing devices from your hardware, department or discount store for a few dollars. And they don't use any more current than an electric clock. That's a small price to pay for all the protection you're getting.

It seems that after winining the heart lead, South had played three rounds of trumps after which unfortunate start there was no way for him to score more than nine tricks.

This type of play in one form or another occurs quite often and is well worth learning. As for the bidding we agree with both pertners. Each one had bid badly.

Bell asks ICC to reconsider size of rate increase

Illinois Bell Telephone Co. Pres. James Olson Tuesday said the company formally asked the Illinois Commerce Commission to reconsider its Feb. 4 services rate decision.

Citing "numerous errors" in the commission's recent approval of a $70 million rate hike, Olson said the utility will go to court if the agency does not grant the request.

The phone company had asked for a $186-million rateincrease package. The request for a rehearing was filed Friday in Springfield. If the ICC issues no statement by March 4, the request will be denied.

CRITICISM OF the Feb. 4 phone service pricing decision also is offered by Gov. Daniel Walker and State's Atty. Bernard Carey. They questioned the size of the rate hike. Carey said a study by his investigators shows a rate reduction is in order for Illineis Bell customers. A 20-cent pay phone call price and a 1977 starting date for charges on some directory assistance calls is included in the ICC grant.

Among Olson's remarks on the ICC rate increase de-

• The commission erred in its order for directory assistance charges that are different from the plan discussed in 11 months of hearings. Olson said the plan "would substantially increase directory assistance cost by requiring equipment additions and much greater operator work time to enable operators to determine, callby-call, which calls are to be charged and which are not chargeable."

The ICC plan for a 30-cent monthly director assistance credit for each customer would result in revenue losses of more than $14 million a year, Olson said.

• The commission's order "erroneously overstated the revenues which will result from the rates therein approved and therefore, the rates will not produce the revenue authorized in the order." he said.

. The commission did not take account of outbacks in customer demand due to the increase in multi-message unit and other charges, Olson said.

 The commission ruling that an 8.75 per cent rate of return is fair, was disputed by Olson. "The manifest weight of the evidence in the record shows that 9.5 to 10 per cent is the range of a proper rate return on the company's property," he said.

Telephone service may suffer if the ICC's "inadequate" rate decision is allowed to stand, Oison said. IN A STATEMENT issued following the Feb. 4 ICC decision. Carey said the burden of the 20-cent phone charge for coin telephones will "fall on those who can least afford it, those who are too poor to mai tain a telephone in their home." The previous rate for coin telephone service was 10 cents.

A spokesman for the ICC in Chicago said the commission may decide within one week whether to review the decision. Bell serves more than 3 million customers in Illinois.

the economic recovery and the third largest bank fallure in U.S. history sent prices lower in fairly active trading Tuesday on the New York Stock

The Dow Jones industrial average, an 8.42-point loser Friday, lost another 7.79 points to 960.57. The blue chip indicator had been behind only about a point up until early afternoon.

Electronic banking—Will it eliminate many jobs?

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) -Americans cashed about 28 billion checks and made about 250 billion cash transactions in 1974. It is estimated check usage accounted for more than 90 per cent of the total dollar value of payments.

Banks, retail stores, bill collection agencies and various other businesses employ thousands of persons to process and record these transactions.

For the most part, workers are lower level white-collar employes. Typical are the bank teller, file clerk and supermarket checkout clerk.

The lower level white-collar employes may some day be an obsolete breed, according to a two-year study conducted for the National Science Foundation by the Arthur D. Little research firm.

THE REASON IS a new technology known as Electronic Funds Transfer. "Basically, EFT is an effort to find a cheaper substitute for checks, and in some cases cash," says Martin Ernst, a Little vice president who was director of the study project.

"An example is the distribution of Social Security checks. Why not have an electronic network and on a given date your account is automatically credited." Ernst said.

"You could also do it for paying money. There are certain types of recurring payments, such as automobile loans, which people worry about. Why not authorize your bank to make it automatically. It can be done electronically without the paper work," he

In the banking business, fewer people would be required to process checks. Fewer tellers would be needed for deposits and withdrawals. In fact, with EFT, one may never have to set foot inside a bank.

"WHAT & THINK is important here is that this technology is taking away the starting white-collar jobs. These are jobs which people without college educations and fewer skills are able to move up from," Ernst said.

Ernst is quick to point out he is nelther for nor against EFT. "Our assignment was to point out problems, not to solve them," he said.

Automation gradually dimished the blue-collar worker. Now EFT threatens to do the same thing to lower level white-collar employes.

"This is not something which will happen tomorrow. We are looking ahead to about 10 or 15 years," he

with Goodyear 'cancer' Rx NEW YORK (UPI) - In the 1920s world as a whole.

Natural rubber rebounds and '30s the automobile and rubber industries agonized over how to develon synthetic rubber. Now they are looking to use more natural rubber.

The increesed interest is underlined by a Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. announcement that scientists working on its 10,000-acre Brazilian plantation have conqueed South American leaf blight, the subber tree cancer that all but destroyed Brazil's great natural rubber forest in the Amezon Valley.

The victory over the leaf blight, achieved by Goodyear botanist Arnold Peterson, is so striking, says Jack Riedl, general manager of Goodyearrs rubber division that in years to come the world against will look to South America as well as Malaysia and Liberia for natural rubber.

All rubber products were made from natural rubber until the Germans produced Bune, the first successful synthetic, in the mid-1930s.

"Some people probably don't realize. that natural latex still accounts for 25 per cent of all rubber consumed in the United States," Riedl said. The same ratio probably is roughly true for the Natural rubber and the sophisticated synthetic rubbers both are needed. Each has advantages over the other. The toughness that gives modern auto tires long mileage is built into synthetics but the resilience and elasticity come from the natural gum and these qualities are vital to many rubber products.

Peterson, the Goodyear botanist, began his battle to conquer South American leaf blight three years ago.

The first year's effort produced a better leaf crop on the trees but no more rubber sap. The second year brought a small increase in rubber yield. The third year has brought harveet increases of 75 to 78 per cent. The results were inspiring, Riedl said, because Peterson started with extremely sick trees that looked hope-

As a result, Goodyear is going to resume planting on the plantation near Belem. Planting had been abandoned because of a severe attack of the tree cancer in the mid-1980s that almost wiped out the plantation.

Microfiche makes job easier for auto dealer

Thumbing through page after page of parts books is no longer necessary for the auto dealer parts man, thanks to a new microfiche catalog system used by Chrysler Plymouth and Dodge

The new, compact system is called MOPAD. To look up a part number, a parts man picks out the plastic card that's color coded to indicate model year. A complote year of auto parts can be listed on four to six of the cards.

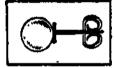

Since the catalog pages are reduced to 50 times less their normal size, the fiche are inserted in a table top projector to be read. Once projected, the catalog details are about 20 per cent larger than the size in paper catalogs.

In addition to being a time-saving device for the dealer employe, the system enables dealers to serve customer demands guickly, the company said. The company's 19 parts depots are linked by computer.

Goal is to humanize businesses

Image building is firm's specialty

by ROZ LISTON

NEW YORK (UPI) - Giant corporations around the globe are faced with an identity crisis now that professional managers are running what used to he family-owned empires with distinctive personalitits.

Walter Landor Associates, a leading industrial designer, specializes in corporate image building to capture the identity of the modern-day company whose public profile too often conveys impersonality and overwhelming size.

Armed with international specialists and psychology, Landor dispatches teams to both hemispheres to revemp a citent's logo, slogan and even its business forms.

"THE LOGO IS only the tip of the corporate image," said Walter Land-or, president of the San Franciscobased firm, which has its headquarters on a landmark ferry boat. "The total image is conveyed through everything the company prints and the words it uses."

One coporate facelift recently made headlines when the National Broadcasting Co. abandoned its peacock for a new symbol, at enormous cost, only to discover it duplicated the logo designed for a Nebraska educational station for a mere $100.

"The more companies tend toward completely abstract symbols," Landor told UPI, "the more difficult it is fer people to respond as human beings to the corporation and to give the corporation a unique personality of its

One of Landor's most challenging projects is Isetan, a Tokyo-based retail chain similar to New York's Bloomingdale's. The company's quest for a new identity was compounded by the Japanese language, which uses symbols to convey word meaning.

"OUR MAIN PROBLEM as a Western firm was to understand the mentality and cultural history of the Japanese so that we did not trespass into the area of language symbolism," said Landor.

Using a team of Americans, Europeans and Orientals, the design firm created a logo with visual meaning that was totally unrelated to any Japanese character.

As part of the image overhaul, the team redesigned the store's sales tags, sales, slipe, packaging, monthly bills and accompanying envelopes, office forms, interior, directional signs, lighting system and even studied the sales staff's clothing and approach to customers.

"A tremendous amount of money can be saved by a corporation over the years in standardizing sales slips and other office forms," according to Landor, "Huge cost cavings can be achieved by reducing the time it takes to fill out forms and process the information.

PUBLIC RECOGNITION of a corporation's new image also can boost profits, he said.

The Isetan project, which still is being implemented, also posed another communications hurdle for the

"The Japanese are more indirect than Westerners, and the Japanese client never expresses outright approval or disapproval," Landor said. In marketing surveys on proposed images for Iseta, for example, the ttam used indirect methods of questioning to probe the attitudes of Japanese

"A change in corporate identity is resented only if it is not an appropriate solution," he said. "The public responds positively if the image conveys that the corporation is run by people with hearts and souls rather than by neuters and computers."

U.S. bonds a top stock: treasurer

"Taking stock in America is the best blue chip investment anyone can make," said Francine Neff, U. S. treasurer, speaking Tuesday in Chicago.

Addressing a group of savings bond campaign chairmen, Mrs. Neff said the goal for 1976 bond sales is $7.6 billion. The Chicago metropolitan area goal is $375 mil-

Gov. Daniel Walker's proclamation of Feb. 16-22 as "Minute Man Week," to promote savings bond sales, was read at the luncheon meeting held in the Hyatt Regency Hotel.

As the National Director of the U.S. Savings Bond Division, Treasury Dept., Mrs. Neff plugs the investment as a decision that's good for an individual and good for the country. A payroll savings plan allows a citizen to participate in the financing of our government in a voluntary way, she said.

MRS. NEFF SAID Treasury Sec. William E. Simon pegs the U. S. capital needs for the coming decade at $4 trillion to $4.5 trillion.

James E. Olson, president of Illinois Bell Telephone Co., urged the business executives to develop personal involvement in the savings bond sales campaign. He is Chicago region representative in the U.S. Industrial Payroll Savings Committee.

Series E savings bonds are securities available in denominations starting at $25. The interest rate is 6 per cent, with a five-year maturity. They can be exchanged in multiples of $500 for Series H bonds, which pay interest every six months.

Computer covers national mania for obscure stat

Sportswriters, as a class, are noted for their addiction to statistics. Baseball is a game of inches, football is a game of yards, and basketbail is regulated by seconds.

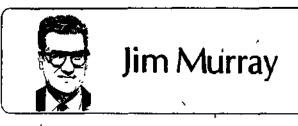

I once knew a guy, a sportswriter all his life, who was put to covering movies and, the first thing you knew, he was clocking things like "the longest movie kiss," "the most people killed in an adult Western." "the private eye hit oftenest over the head" or the most cigarets smoked by Bette Davis, or the most countries capured by Errol Flyon.

Some years ago Leonard Koppett, a baseball writer, famous for his passion for the all-purpose statistic, was observed struggling into a press box with a bulky suitcase. "What's he get in there? someone wondered idly. Jimmy Cannon, casting a cursory glance at the bulging value enapped tersely, "Decimal points."

It's the abstruce logarithm that fascinates the poets of the press box most - the non-winning times, the lap fractions of second-place finishers, the rap-outs at the lower heights by the pole vaulters. Nover mind the third-down conversions, he likes the second-down

"Won" and "lost" are no longer considered meaningful measures of prowess to the dedicated figure filbert. The language of sports has been enriched in the past few decades with the "earned run average," the "hang time" of punts. It's no longer the batting average but the "slugging" average. It's not whether you won or lost. It's the square root.

Managers and coaches have their own essteric rating system. Baseball managers love guys who can bunt or hit to right. Home' run hitters make them mutter in their sleep. Football coaches grade guys on how well they run their routes, or "slant" or "loop" in the line. Basketball coaches praise guys who can set a pick; regardless of what they do from the line.

And now, a whisky promotion has come along and attempted to computerize this national mania for the obscure stat, and perhaps prove that not all the best practitioners of sport are in the Super Bowl, the World Series, the Johnny Carson show, or even the Stanley Cup. They have come up with something called the "Productive Efficiency Rating" with a view to finding a (of course) "Seven Crowns of Sports" winner, who may not necessarily be O. J. Simpson, Johnny Bench, Jimmy Connors. Or it may even delve into the past and prove Babe Ruth was a burn and Dempsey a prelim

The program hoped to find out if the guy who really does hit to right, or moves the runner along, is really the MVP and not the bokey guy the writers awarded it to in a vote.

What they were trying to de was show that, say, a hockey goal scored in an 8-1 game against a backup goalie is not to be equated with one scored in overtime against the Philadelphia Flyers, or that a 30-save night against a bunch of slap-happy shots-on-goal players trying to wing in winners from the blue line is not all that impressive. That a 100-runs-batted-in year for a guy on a non-contending club who looks at second-line pitching all year is not all that valid.

They have come up with a few interesting oddities. A triple in baseball, for example, invariably results in 1.2 runs they say.

Since very few games are decided 1.2-0, and since the most triples hit in the big leagues last were by Mickey Rivers, who can triple on an infield hit, you have to wonder if the computer can be trusted

If one were to hope the greatest player in the NFL last year would turn out to be Otis Sistrunk, or the best basketball player Toby Kimball, or the best baseball player John Wockenfuss, the hope is wasted. The computer turns out to be just another bubblegum card collector. It's torn between Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Julius Erving in basketball, O. J. Simpson and Franco Harris in football, and Joe Morgan and Fred Lynn in baseball.

It did throw Connors out of the tennis scene and correctly identified Manuel Orantes as the Player of the Year even before Forest Hills. But otherwise, it's as big a chalk player as Sports Illustrated. It doesn't think any more of a guy who takes two and hits to right, or sets the pick, or provides the trap block, than any other auto-

Alas! Not even a computer can be trained to watch the guards or reserve judgment till it studies the films. It throws its hat in the air over home runs and touchdowns and service aces and one-putts the same as the rest of us.

Conant wins thriller, gains South lead

by ART MUGALIAN

The Conant Cougars overcame stiff odds and a full-court press to defeat Schaumburg 51-49 Tuesday night at the Saxons' gym, knocking Schaumburg from first place in the Mid-Súburban League South Division basket-

The victory puts Conant in the driver's seat with a 9-2 record.

The Cougars survived a last-minute surge by Schaumburg which nar-rowed a five-point lead down to one with 13 seconds left, but a shot by Jon McIlraith fell short and Conant held on with the rebound and a free throw by Rob Totten.

Cougar guard Pete Scaffidi led his team with 18 points on nine field goals. Tetten and Brian O Donnell hae 13 each, including 16 free throws zetween them, all but five in the second

Conant rebounded from a disastrous first quarter which saw Schaumburg build a 23-12 lead almost before the visitors knew what hit them. Schaumburg shot 10 for 13 in that first period, led by 6-3 guard Ed Chmiel who had four straight baskets. But Chmiel and was in and out the rest of the Schaumburg finished South Division play at 9-3. The Saxons can win a division title only if Conant is upset at Forest View Friday.

'We shot the whole game like Schaumburg did in the first quarter," said Conant coach Dick Redlinger, whose team is now 13-7 for the season. "The kids played well, they hung in there and they really hustled."

Redlinger had planned to switch zone defenses to confuse Schaumburg, but nothing stopped the Saxons in the sprained an ankle late in the quarter opening minutes. Chmiel and Dan Breen scored from outside and John Chmiel broke free a couple times for easy baskets underneath.

"We decided to stay with the 2-3 zone," said Redlinger. "The 2-3 is what cooled them off in the second quarter "

While Scaffidi hit from the baseline and Totten drove the lanes and fed off, the Cougars closed ground, finally pulling even 31-31 on a pair of Totten free throws at the start of the second half.

"We didn't have one of our better shooting nights," said Saxon coach Joe Breault. "But we weren't getting too, many open shots or second chances either

Schaumburg shot just 35 per cent from the field and missed seven of 16 free throw attempts. The Cougars were 17 of 38 from the floor and 17 of 24 from the line.

Conant outrebounded their opponents 29-21.

The lead changed hands several times in the third quarter before the Cougars opened a 47-44 fourth period edge on a fast break layup and two free throws by O'Donnell.

With 1:36 left Totten dropped in two more free throws for what looked like a safe 50-45 lead.

But a short turnaround jumper by John Chmiel and a baseline drive by McIlraith with just 17 seconds left cut the margin to one. Mcllraith's missed attempt from the top of the key with 8 seconds remaining, following a Conant turnover, was the Saxons' last chance Totten, whose final free throw iced the victory, finished with eight assists. O'Donnell had 10 rebounds to lead both teams. Ed Chmiel and McIlraith had 16 points each for Schaumburg, John Chmiel had 11 for Schaumburg, now 19-4.

points and helped by dominating control of the boards, the Rolling Meadows Mustangs buried Forest View Tuesday night, 84-50.

"It's one of those nights we've been waiting for forever," said Mustang coach Bill Weinberg after the game. Weinberg praised his team's over-all play, and especially singled out Mo-

"He's (Moran) started to come on late in the year and just had a heliuva game," Welnberg said.

Both clubs shot at a blistering pace from the field - Forest View, 61 per cent, and Meadows 82 per cent. The Mustangs opened a 38-25 halftime lead with a red-hot 18 for 25 barrage, 72 per cent accuracy.

The Mustangs dominated on the boards, pulling down 38 to only 12 for Forest View.

The 64 points is a high season mark for the Mustangs, and just about everybody had a hand in the scoring honors. Moran led with 20, followed by Bill Wissen with 16, John Carbery with 16 and Jerry McGill with 10. Tom Lunak led the Falcons with 20. more to come

PIRATES TOPPLE KNIGHTS

Ken Reid teamed with Kevin McKenna to dominate the backboard and the scoreboard Tuesday night in leading Palatine to a 66-57 triumph over visiting Prospect.

The Pirates, who have yet to win a game in their own North Division, captured the second straight crossover contest by jumping into an 18-10 first quarter lead and never relinquishing control.

Reid dropped in four buckets during the Palatine uprising and Al Knotek chipped in with a trio of field goals.

McKenna, nursing a sore ankle, still managed to maintain his hefty scoring average, zeroing in on 10 of 21 afield and finishing with 24 points. Reid clicked on nine of 17 from the floor for 18 total.

McKenna and Reid also hauled in 15 and 13 rebounds, respectively, while helping the hests dominate the boards. Heading up the Knight attack were Brad Millar with 17 points, Tim Kubick! with 11 and Chris Etter with 10.

Led by Terry Moran's 16 first half Prospect now owns an 8-15 overall

Doug Buenzow chipped in with 10 for the Pirates, who are now 6-14 on the season.

GRENS POST 18TH WIN

Dave Hornacek and Mark Sass combined for 37 points Tuesday night to lead the Elk Grove Grenadiers to a 53-40 win over the hosting Hoffman Estates Hawks.

The win pumped the Grens' Mid-Suburban League South Division slate to 7-4 and their overall record to 18-5. "Our defense really tied them up in the second half," said Elk Grove coach Bill Parmentier. "We held them to just three baskets in the fourth quarter."

The Grens took an early lead and never lost it as they topped the Hawks for the third time this season.

Hornacek led the Grens with 21 points and Sass canned 16.

Ron Warring chipped in 16 pints to lead Hoffman. Jeff Curtin added 12. The two teams battled to a 31-31 standoff in rebounding.

WARRIORS BLITZ CARDS

The Maine West Warriors gave an impressive demonstration of 'both ends of the court' basketball Tuesday night in a convincing 78-49 non-conference victory over Arlington.

Spotting the visiting Cardinals an early 7-2 lead, Maine West forged back to tie the game on several occasions in the first quarter.

Strong rebounding on the defensive boards and good movement on offense were key factors in the Warriors' comeback. Baskets by Buddy Doroskin and Bob Zuccarini put Maine West up, 17-13, at the quarter's end.

The momentum and fluidity achieved by Maine West in the first quarter was mulatained the rest of the way. Maine West autscored the Cardinals 40-24 in the final half.

Arlington was limited to one shot by the Warriors throughout much of the contest, which provided the hosts with a substantial edge in field goals, 33-22, Senior forward Bill Finints led Maine West, now 14-9, with 20 points, while Zuccarini scored 17 points. Center Greg Kloiber topped the Arlington ledger with 14. The Cards are COLD SHOULDER. Rick Gauger tries some pinning combinations on Frank Roemisch of Forest View in their 112-pound quarterfinal bout at the Ridgewood district tourney. Gauger eventually won by fall at 3:20 and went on to qualify, helping his Warriors win the team championship.

Top girls' teams escape upsets

DRIVING AGAINST a Downers bie Barnd during Hersey hosted Grove defender is Hersey's Deb- tournament.

Only four Mid-Suburban League girls' basketball teams remain undefeated in division play after Tuesday night's action.

In the North Division, Fremd had a close call at Buffalo Grove before winning 63-56. Wheeling matched Fremd's 2-0 record with a convincing 65-33 victory over visiting Palatine.

Meanwhile, the top teams in the South were narrowed to Hoffman Estates and Conant. The Hoffman Hawks held off a tough hosting Elk Grove team to win 54-47. It was Hoffman's second divisional triumph without a loss. It was the Grenadiers first setback.

The Conant Cougars notched their first division win in as many tries with a 36-27 decision at Ferest View (I-f).

In the other MSL game, Hersey evened its record at 1-1 with a 43-32 victory over visiting Arlington. The Prospect-Schaumburg game was called because there were no referees.

Other action had Sacred Heart stopping Lake Park, 38-27; Maine West losing its season opener to Highland Park, 61-40; and Rolling Meadows notching its first win in seven tries, edging Addison Trail 27-19.

Fremd, holder of an 8-0 over-all record, appeared headed for still another romp against the Bison. The Vikings jumped out to a 31-12 first quarter lead.

"They (Bison) just kept saying they wouldn't give up," said Buffale Greve coach Ann Penstone. "They said they were going to give them a good game no matter what."

The Bison held Fremd to just two points in the second quarter to trail at the half, 33-22. Buffalo Grove cut the lead to four with a minute to go before Fremd put it out of reach Heidi Giesler led Fremd with 16 points. Allsmiller was tops for the Bison with 11. Buffalo Grove had won three straight coming into the contest. "Maybe somebody will take us se-ricusly now," said Penstone. Fremd's important win sets up the crucial matchup with Wheeling on Thursday with the division title quite possibly on the line.

Wheeling romped to its eighth win without a loss behind Sandy Rainey's 14 points, Marcy Mazzetta was high for the Pirates with 12.

The Hoffman Estates Hawks notched their sixth game in eight tries as Clare Dowling tossed in 26 — her high game and also the area high game of the season. Kim Richardson led the Grenadiers with 13.

Forest View ran into a tough defensive quintet in Conant, scoring only three in the third quarter. The Cougars put the game away in that period with 12 points. Kathy Evans scored 11 to led Conant to its seventh win in

Chicago topples Phoenix in OT

Jack Marin scored six points in the final 19 seconds of overtime Tuesday night to pace the Chicago Bulls to a 114-111 victory over the Phoenix Suns, breaking a three-game losing streak.

Marin put the Bulls shead 110-109 with a layup with 19 seconds to play. Then he intercepted a Suns pass and banked in a five foot off balance shot with six seconds remaining. After a basket by Paul Westphal for the Suns, Marin canned two free throws with one

Marin came off the bench after the first period to lead all scorers with a season high 34 points. Bob Love had 31, 24 of them in the first half. Starting center Elvin Adams of Phoenix had 32 points. Phoenix sent the game into overtime when Curtis Perry scored on a tipin with three seconds remaining in regulation time. Chicago to tie the game at 93-93 with just over three minutes to play. But Love put the Bulls ahead with a layup with 2:40 left and then added four points and Marin two before Phoenix scored the final eight points of the period, four from Adams and two from Westphal, had led 81-78 going into the final period when the Suns came back

Sale of Giants bogs down again

A tedicus, point-by-point approval of a sale memorandum by directors of the National Exhibition Co. may delay transfer of the San Francisco Giants to Bob Lurie and Bob Short for several days, the atterney for the company said Tuesday.

"I doubt if we'll have a decision today," James L. Hunt said after meeting with directors of NEC, the parent company of the financially ailing National League team. "It might be a couple of days, maybe longer. Points that have to be renegotiated might stretch it

The Larie and Short combine made an $8 million cash offer for the franchise last week, but Hunt said, "It is much more complicated than the flat offer made in court last week, Getting the exact terms of the cash transaction is not simple. There probably will be counter-proposals and counter-counter proposals."

"However, we're hopeful that everything will be worked out as quickly as possible."

Ali on the ropes with head cold

A coughing, nose-dripping Muhammed Ali cancelled a sparring session Tuesday but gave a crowd of 600 onlookers one of his typical monleque performances.

"Patrice Lumumba, where are you?" shouted Ali. "Remember the Congo!", referring to the fact the challenger Jean-Pierre Coopman is Belgian. The heavyweight title bout is set for Friday at the Roberto Clemente Municipal Coliseum. "I'm here to talk, not to fight," Ali told the crowd.

During a light workout of rope skippping and punching the bag, the champion sweated profusely, coughed and blew his nose on his towel. However, he insisted, "I'm in top condition."

Aggie cagers forced to sidelines

Attorneys for Texas A&M basketball starters Karl Godine and Jarvis Williams, suspended by the Southwest Conference, tried and failed Tuesday to win resinstatement for the players, thus preventing them from appearing in Tuesday night's Aggie-Houston

The lawyers apparently planned another attempt today to win a temporary restraining order that would allow Godine and Williams to participate in the remainder of the schedule for the leagueleading Aggles.

Godine and Williams, both freshmen, were suspended by the conference last Sunday. League officials have refused to state publicly why the action was taken, although subsequent reports have indicated the suspensions resulted from alleged recruiting violations.

Vilas back in tournament form

Top-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina used a hard volley and a strong backhand Tuesday to best Anand Amritraj of India in the first round of the $60,000 St. Louis Tennis Classic, 7-8, 6-2. Vilas, 29, who had rested from tournament competition the last 10 weeks, won the tiebreaker, 7-1, as Amritraj lost all four of his serves.

Second-seeded Manuel Orantes of Barcelona, Spain, took his firstround match ever Ray Moore of Johannesburg, South Africa, 6-4, 1-6, 6-3. Earlier in the tourney, Billy Martin, the 1975 NCAA champion from UCLA, beat Onny Parun of Wellington, New Zealand, 6-1, 7-5.

Meanwhile, back in the courts...

The estranged wife of Charles O. Finley has accused him of failing to file federal income tax returns for the company his sports franchises, including the Oakland Athletics . . . Heirs of race car driver Mark Donoine, killed last August in a practice round for the Austrian Grand Prix, Tuesday filed a $20 million damage suit against the makers of his Heimet (Bell Heimets, Inc.) and auto tires (Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co.) . . .

Diable, one of the nation's top four-year-elds last year and thirdplace finisher in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, was operated on Tuesday for a broken ankle suffered in the seventh race at Santa Anita Menday, and will not be destroyed . . . The jury hearing the multi-million dollar suit against the American League was dismissed Tuesday and the case — as per agreement — was continued until April, 1977.

AKC figures show Poodles down

The registration figures just re- Feeding time -leased for 1975 by the American Kennel Club seemed to reflect the state of the economy during the year, Individual registrations declined 7.9 per cent for the year, down to 1,022,849 from 1,103,249 in 1974.

Of the 121 recognized breeds, seven In the top 30 showed increases in 1975: Dobermans, Cocker Spaniels, Golden Retrievers, Siberian Huskies, Lhasa Apsos, English Springer Spaniels and Shih Tzu. Increased Doberman registrations were particularly striking in the face of the general downturn. For the year, 57,336 Dobes were registered, placing them in the fourth spot among the top 10. In 1974 they were in sixth place.

Poodles, although still the number one dog in registrations, fell off in 1975, actually 19 per cent declining to 139,750 from 1974's 171.550.

And about the top 10, here they are: Poodles, German Shepherds, Irish Setters, Doberman Pinschers, Beagles, Dachshunds, Cocker Spaniels, Miniature Schnauzers, Labrador Retrievers and in No. 10, Collies.

A dog is basically a creature of habit and should be fed at the same time each day. A new puppy should he fed small amounts at regular intervals throughout the day. This helps in the digestion of his food, since he requires more food per pound of body weight than grown dogs, but can't digest as much at one time.

As the dog grows older, the number of feedings should be reduced. Most grown dogs do well on one meal a day: Some owners prefer to feed a snack in the morning and a full meal

Keep in mind the most important point, once you have established a regular feeding time, stick to it. You know how your stomach feels when you go past a normal meal time, then remember how your dog must feel when he gets fed just once during the day, and the meal is late.

Similar breeds confusing -

Dog owners who occasionally become confused by look-alike breeds of dogs should not consider themselves

In our country today, there are a number of breeds that even confuse the experts. For example the No. 4 dog in the A.K.C. listings, the Beagle. There is a 13-inch and a 15-inch. In Canada they go to a 18-inch dog. Of course, what really throws people is when they see a Harrier, they think it is a large Beagle, or a small Fox

Among the toy breeds years ago, it was pretty much of a foregone conchusion what the breeds were. Today, owever, it's another story. With the introduction of a number of new breeds, some folks call a number of look-alikes a Pekingese, when they could be a Lhasa Apso or a Shih Tzu.

Fyfe's effort, the only bright spot in a 92-84 Lawrence defeat at the hands of the Grinnell Piencers, gave him a career mark of 1,260 points, topping Joel Ungrodt's record 1,247 points set in the early 1980's. Fyfe has six mes remaining in his Lawrence University career to add to his

To become the highest point scorer in Lawrence basketball history, Fyfe, sen of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fyfe, 21 S. Glenwood, Palatine, has had to face four looing seasons of play.

But Fyfe's concerns about playing the game exceed a simple "winning is everything" philosophy. The ultimate thrill for any sports figure is to achieve a victory, and Fyfe agrees that "winning is great," but he also has learned to emphasize self-discipline and individual improvement.

"Any team's goal is to have a winning season," he said. "But losing a game doesn't mean a wasted evening if you do the best you can."

Fyfe's attitude toward basketball also has been an asset to the team. Viking Coach Bob Kastner praised his team efforts. "Doug is an extremely dedicated person. He is a student of the game and works continually to improve his playing as well as that of the team." Kastner also said that Fyfe has assisted with coaching responsibilities while serving as co-captain of the team the last two seasons.

Athletics have always been as impertant part of Fyfe's career as a studeni. À 1972 graduate el Palatine High School, he was named the baskethall team's most valuable player his senior year. In addition to playing backetball for four years, Fyle also lettered in football and golf.

When Fyle came to Lawrence he decided to concentrate on one sport: basketball, and pursue other non-athletic activities offered by a small col-

His career as center of the Vikings has been impressive. As a freshman, the 6-foot Fyfe captured honors as team high scorer. During his junior season he racked up 398 points in 22 games to merit the same recognition and added 354 points as a sophomore.

The Vikings' 1974-75 season ended with a disappointing 5-17 record. With few returning upperclassmen and nine incoming freshmen players, the Vikes suffered the pains of a young team. But the season did provide an individual victory for co-captain Fyfe. He was named to the All-Midwest Conference second team. He was the fourth leading scorer in the conference and team leader in rebounds as well as in

This winter Fyfe is averaging 18.1 points per game. The Vikings' conference record to date is 2-10; overall the Vikes are 6-10.

For Pyle that record is a victory in itself. Ceach Kastner sees an improved season as a "well deserved pay-off for sticking with the team through many defeats."

Fyfe also has found satisfaction in other ways at Lawrence. An English major, he also has pursued his interest in dramatic studies by taking a number of courses in the theatre department. As a sophomore he was cast in the spring production of Dion. Boucleault's "Old Heads and Young Hearts," playing the part of Colonel Rocket.

Becoming a high school English teacher and bushethall coach are Fyfe's tentative post-graduate plans. Last year, he spent a term student-teaching in English and social studies pleton, while also directing a student dramatic production.

As a referee for on-campus spects. Fyfe keeps in touch with intramural athletics. He is a member of the Lawrence Letterman's Club and secretary of his fraternity, Beta Theta Pi.

Like many seniors, Fyfe is not exactly sure where he will be a year from today. He may be a ceach rather than a player. If so, he will probably be telling his players about the value of participating in sports. That philosophy has been a successful one

Steak and Enchiladas

Something very special is happening on Wednesday night at the Boar's Head Restaurant.

$3.95 Wednesday night.

Steak and enchiladas.

For only $3.95, you get a juicy steak, two cheese enchiladas, salad and coffee, tea or milk.

The steak is choice top sirloin, and the enchiladas are ground corn tortillas, topped and filled with cheddar cheese and a nottoo-mild, not-too-spicy sauce.

Drop into the Boar's Head Restaurant on Wednesday night. We think you'll agree that this is the best dinner deal in town. In fact, we'll stake our enchiladas on it.

State asked to disclose names of suspended doctors

The Illinois Medical Society and its Chicago counterpart asked the Illinois Dept. of Public Aid Tuesday for names of 17 dectors who have been suggested from the Illinois Medicald program so they can begin their own investigations.

In a separate action, the Better Government Assn. asked the department to withhold Medicaid payments from laboratories which offered BGA and federal investigators kickbacks at a dummy medical clinic.

The Illinois State Medical Society and the Chicago Medical Society sent a telegram to Public Aid Director James Trainor saying they plan to investigate doctors whom the state suspended from further participation in the Mediald program.

"Full disciplinary action, including revocation of lies and expulsion from medical society membership must be initiated, if warranted, against these individuals," the telegram said.

'Cuts imperil U.S. security'

The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff said Tuesday if Congress substantially cuts President Ford's préposed $112.7 billion defense budget, it will "risk U.S. security.

"We have to dispel the illusion that the defense budget is a horn of plenty from which funds can be drawn without severe damage, for other national programs," Maj. Gen. George S. Brown said in a speech to the Chicago Rotary Club.

"Congressional cuts of the magnitude of recent years ($4 billion to $8 billion) . . . will cut into U.S. military capabilities, continue trends which would move the United States to a point of insufficiency and risk U.S. security by unnecessarily injecting a fundamental instability into an already confused world situation." Brown's speech came only hours after Defense Sec. Donald Rumsfeld told President Ford and GOP congressional leaders in Washington that the Soviet Union is ahead of the United States in developing all major conventional military weapons.

Patty accuses SLA of 2 closet 'rapes'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) - Patricia Hearst told the jury at her trial Tuesday two of the mais kidnapers, Donald Defreeze and Willie Wolfe, forced her into "sexual intercourse" in a tiny closet as an introduction into the ways of the terrorist cult.

Gulping for breath and her voice quavering, the 21-year-old Miss Hearst said one of the woman members of the Symbionese Liberation Army told her it was time for her to "know what it was like being in the ceil."

"She told me I was going to sleep with Willie Wolfe, so I did," Miss Hearst said.

On the witness stand for a second day, Miss Hearst said she was told over and over that she was going to be killed and was forced to make a tape recording in which she berated her parents, saying they didn't care whether she was freed or not.

Defense lawyer F. Lee Bailey suddenly introduced the subject of her virtual rape about a month after her kidnaping while she was kept bound and blindfolded in the closet in the house where she was

Ford tells major intelligence reforms

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Ford Tuesday placed all intelligence operations under the management of CIA director George Bush, and created an independent, three-man White House board to safeguard against intelligence-gathering abuses

Announcing a series of major reforms at the outset of a nationally broadcast news conference at the White House, the President asked Congress to outlaw assassination attempts by U.S. intelligence agencies against foreign heads of state and to make it a federal crime for agency employes to leak secret information.

Ford also said ne was issuing a comprehensive set of legally binding guidelines intended to provide "stringent protections for the rights of American citizens" against illegal domestic intelligence

Acting after months of widespread allegations of illegal or questionable CIA activities in Congress and the press, the President made clear he would retain ultimate control for U.S intelligence

Suit seeks return of budget veto

by WANDALYN RICE

Suburban commissioners on the Cook County Board will regain their veto power over the county's multimillion dollar budget if a suit filed in Cook County Circuit Court by an Evanston attorney is successful.

The suit also may have major effects on the way the county will be able to use the home-rule power granted under the 1970 Illinois Constitution, a power widely believed to give the county board almost unlimited taxing authority.

The suit, filed by John T. Allen Jr., challenges the legality of county board action last fall, which changed the requirement for approving the county's expenditures from a twothirds to a simple majority.

Under the two-thirds majority, which was required by state law, the six suburban Republican commissioners had a veto over county expenditures, even if the expenditures had the unanimous support of the county board's 10 Chicago Democrats.

THE SUBURBAN Republicans had won that veto power in 1974 when a federal court ruled that the "one-man, urbs must have six members on the board.

№ Last fall the county board's Democratic majority changed the twothirds requirement, saying the county's bome-rule power gave it the right to overrule the state statute with a county ordinance. The Republican commissioners opposed the action.

Thomas Brannigan, Allen's attorney, said the suit challenging the ordinance is a class action suit on behalf of all the taxpayers in the county.

Brannigan said he will argue that the ordinance denies suburban taxpayers equal protection of the law under the U.S. constitution, that the county's home-rule power is not broad enough to allow it to overrule a state statute and that proper notice of the proposed ordinance was not given before it was approved.

In a brief filed with the suit, Brannigan says the action deprives the suburban commissioners and their constituents "of an equally effective voice and meaningful representation

One by-product of the space race is helping Bob Runte and Bob Anderson turn a 255-year-old idea into a fast growing international business.

Runte and Anderson are president and vice president respectively of video table games which one is likely to find in bars, hotels and motels throughout the world.

Without the space race we wouldn't be sitting here," Runte said,

Fascination Ltd. pioneered the concept of video games in cocktail tables. Anderson said the firm started Aug. 28, 1973 in his living room. The U.S. Patent Office last November awarded a patent to Runte for the basic table

Runte said the patent should clear the highly competitive video game field for his firm. So competitive is the field that new games are developed in strict secrecy, and Runte wouldn't say what the firm's latest venture will be. Fascination Ltd. sells its machines for $1,250 each to entrepreneurs who then place them in hotels, bars or other "people" areas. Users of the games pay 25 or 50 cents for each

"WE GUARANTEE 100 per cent return of their investment after a year or we'll buy the machines back," Runte said. He added the firm has yet to buy back a game. The company's sales have more than doubled each year, although neither Runte nor Anderson would give exact figures. The firm outgrew several Des Plaines locations before moving to its current facility at 1950

There is one actor. He's an older gentleman whose only props are his notebook and a smile.

He visits some rooms, but strides quickly past others. This mission is highly organized. "I don't want any mistakes around here," he said ear-

Nobody bothers him much except for an occasional "Good morning, Mr. Davis." They know that he has important business around Northwest Community Hospital.

And there's never enough time.

He was nearly finished on the second floor. Now, Mr. Davis approached yet another room, hesitated momentarily outside, then pushed the door aiar and burst inside.

"GOOD MORNING, I am Clarence Davis, one of the hospital's patient visitors," the gentieman told his au-dience in a voice crisp and strong. "Just stopped by to see if we're taking good care of you."

One woman reacted quickly and you knew that she was feeling pretty good. "Oh, they're doing their dar-

Not really, the woman responded. She had only been taking a little nap

Clarence usually asks about the food, which even he describes as "edible," and better on Sundays. He wants to know whether their room has been kept clean

Support us on donation law: village

Wheeling village officials will drop plans for an ordinance requiring developers to make land and cash donations to park and school districts unless those districts agree to pay the costs of any resulting lawsuits.

Trustee Gilbert Monson, chairman of the real estate and zoning committee, said the park and school districts must agree to reimburse the village for any costs of a lawsuit before the ordinance is passed.

"If the school and park districts give us support, then it is a moot issue and we will abandon the ordinance," he said.

The proposed law would require developers to donate 5.5 acres for recreational use for every 1,000 persons brought into the village. The ordi-

Officials of Who Dist. 21 and the Wheeling Park District said they would be willing to pay court costs on any lawsuits only up to the value of the property involved.

"The lawsuit could go as far as the state Supreme Court and the costs could be way beyond the value of the property and the cash contribution. The village would still have the risk," Burke said.

TRUSTEE JOHN COLE said the park district and school district "have to realize they'll have to go for more than the value of the land."

Lawsuit to test county's power of home-rule

by WANDALYN RICE

Suburban commissioners on the Cook County Board will regain their veto power over the county's multimillion dollar budget if a suit filed in Cook County Circuit Court by an Evanston attorney is successful.

The suit also may have major effects on the way the county will be able to use the home-rule power granted under the 1970 Illinois Constitution, a power widely believed to give the county board almost unlimited taxing authority.

The suit, filed by John T. Allen Jr., challenges the legality of county board action last fall, which changed the requirement for approving the county's expenditures from a twothirds to a simple majority.

Under the two-thirds majority, which was required by state law, the six suburban Republican commissioners had a veto over county expenditures, even if the expenditures had the unanimous support of the county board's 10 Chicago Democrats.

THE SUBURBAN Republicans had won that veto power in 1974 when a federal court ruled that the "one-man, one-vote" requirement meant the suburbs must have six members on the board. Last fall the county board's Democratic majority changed the twothirds requirement, saying the county's home-rule power gave it the right to overrule the state statute with a county ordinance. The Republican commissioners opposed the action.

Thomas Brannigan, Allen's attorney, said the suit challenging the ordiance is a class action suit on behalf of all the taxpayers in the county. Brannigan said he will argue that the ordinance denies suburban taxpayers equal protection of the law under the U.S. constitution, that the county's home-rule power is not broad enough to allow it to overrule a state statute and that proper notice of the proposed ordinance was not given before it was approved.

In a brief filed with the suit, Brannigan says the action deprives the suburban commissioners and their constituents "of an equally effective voice and meaningful representation on the Cook County beard."

BRANNIGN SAID if the court rules the county cannot overrule a state statute under home rule, "It would change protty substantially what home-rule units think they can do."

He said he will argue that because the Illinois Supreme Court held that the county could not collect property taxes in four installments, because a state law called for two installments, that the county does not have the power to overrule a state law.

concerning the possibilty of forming a municipal department and "they all say someday it would be a good idea," Winter said.

Winter said at a recent meeting of the rural fire district that his budget "would be increased by $90,000 from the Lake County portion of the village alone" if Buffale Grove has a municipal department.

Winter also said a village-run department would "help eliminate a lot of duplication by taking all the money to better one department.

"The fire district was formed 25 years ago and now it has outgrown its usefulness because there is very said. "By switching to a municipal operation you would see very little change in the makeup of the department, but the addition of six or seven new men (for Lake County coverage), would be a big shot in the arm for everybody."

BUFFALO GROVE Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said he supported the idea of a municipal department, but said "we just don't have the money to handle it now."

"We would be inheriting a $45.50,000 yearly debt service and $200,000 in yearly operating costs," Larson said. "We just couldn't handle it until we build a more sizable financial base."

Correction

Several quotes in a story in The Herald Tuesday about the Buffalo Grove Village Board's preliminary approval of a Poppin' Fresh restaurant were incorrectly attributed to Trustee John Marienthal.

Plan Comr. Howard Mendenball, not Marienthal, said "the remaining piece of property isn't large enough to do anything else but build one freestanding building."

Mendenhall also said, "On the same side of the street you have a Pizza Hut and a Bonanza. You'd be talking about the possibility of four restau-rants right next to each other. Is this something we can point to with pride?"

Terry, the son of Patrick and Mary Lou Shields, 1016 Whitehall Ln., has been modeling off and on since August for a fee of approximately $30 an hour. He has appeared in fashion shows, a Marshall Field catalog and even a national television spot for the Hallmark Hall of Fame.

Visits to three Chicago modeling agencies in March have led to a variety of assignments for Terry, an engaging and talkative preschooler, who says he likes to see himself in magazines but objects to "all those lights -they made me hot, real hot."

rekkys biggest enterpr date has been a one-time Hallmark Cards commercial that ran earlier this month. For "an instant" of air time, Terry spent two full days punching valentines in a downtown studio. He also spent three hours setting up for a Quaker Oats advertisement in Parade magazine, which wasn't much fun because "they only let me take bites of the cookie and not the whole thing," Terry says.

Why put up with hours of valentinepunching and hot lights? Is it the money? The thrill of knowing that 30 million people will see your son reaching for a Quaker Oats cookie? Or just old-fashioned parental pride?

"I certainly don't think of myself as a pushy stage mother," Mrs. Shields says with a smile. "Terry leads a very simple life right now, and the modeling provides a stimulation that he wouldn't have otherwise."

Suit to test county board power

by WANDALYN RICE

Suburban commissioners on the Cook County Board will regain their veto power over the county's multimillion dollar budget if a suit filed in Cook County Circuit Court by an Evanston attorney is successful.

The suit also may have major effects on the way the county will be able to use the home-rule power granted under the 1970 Illinois Constitution, a power widely believed to ed taxing authority.

The suit, filed by John T. Allen Jr., challenges the legality of county board action last fall, which changed the requirement for approving the county's expenditures from a twothirds to a simple majority.

Under the two-thirds majority, which was required by state law, the six suburban Republican commissioners had a veto over county expenditures, even if the expenditures county board's 10 Chicago Democrats. THE SUBURBAN Republicans had won that veto power in 1974 when a federal court ruled that the "one-man, one-vote" requirement meant the suburbs must have six members on the board. Last fall the county board's Democratic majority changed the twothirds requirement, saying the county's home-rule power gave it the right to overrule the state, statute with a

Thomas Brannigan, Allen's attorney, said the suit challenging the ordinance is a class action suit on behalf of all the taxpayers in the county. Brannigan said he will argue that the ordinance denies suburban taxpayers equal protection of the law under the U.S. constitution, that the county's home-rule power is not broad enough to allow it to overrule a state statute and that proper notice of the proposed ordinance was not given before it was approved.

In a brief filed with the suit, Brannigan says the action deprives the suburban commissioners and their constituents "of an equally effective voice and meaningful representation on the Cook County board."

BRANNIGN SAID if the court rules the county cannot overrule a state statute under home rule, "it would change pretty substantially what home-rule units think they can do."

He said he will argue that because the Illinois Supreme Court held that the county could not collect property taxes in four installments, because a state law called for two installments. that the county does not have the power to overrule a state law.

Suburban commissioners, who have been studying the possibility of their own suit challenging the county board action ,said they are studying the suit to see whether they can join it.

COMR. CARL HANSEN of Elk Grove Village said, "We have to make sure the suit is strong enough to support our position." He said studying the legal options open to the suburban commissioners under the suit "is an item of No. 1 priority."

Brannigan said he does not know what the suburban commissioners can do to support the suit. "They are welcome to do anything they can," he

Suburban commissioners on the Cook County Board will regain their veto power over the county's multimillion dollar budget if a suit filed in Cook County Circuit Court by an Evanston attorney is successful.

The suit also may have major effects on the way the county will be able to use the home-rule power granted under the 1970 Illinois Constitution, a power widely believed to give the county board almost unlimited taxing authority.

The suit, filed by John T. Allen Jr., challenges the legality of county board action last fall, which changed the requirement for approving the county's expenditures from a twothirds to a simple majority.

Last fall the county board's Democratic majority changed the twothirds requirement, saving the county's home-rule power gave it the right to overrule the state statute with a county ordinance. The Republican commissioners opposed the action.

Thomas Brannigan, Allen's attorney, said the suit challenging the ordinance is a class action suit on behalf of all the taxpayers in the county.

Brannigan said he will argue that the ordinance denies suburban taxpayers equal protection of the law under the U.S. constitution, that the county's home-rule power is not broad enough to allow it to overrule a state statute and that proper notice of the proposed ordinance was not given before it was approved.

Games right out of space

by TOM VON MALDER

One by-product of the space race is helping Bob Runte and Bob Anderson turn a 2½-year-old idea into a fast growing international business.

Runte and Anderson are president and vice president respectively of Fascination Ltd., manufacturers of video table games which one is likely to find in bars, hotels and motels throughout the world.

"Without the space race we wouldn't be sitting here." Runte said, explaining how space industry-developed solid state circuitry enables dozens of tubes to be replaced by a tiny "chip," smaller than a pin head.

WIIILE THE "logic board" is the brain of the video games, a monitor used in the field of medicine gives them life - another example of the adaptability of electronic advances.

Fascination Ltd. pioneered the concept of video games in cocktail tables. Anderson said the firm started Aug. 28, 1973 in his living room. The U.S. Patent Office last November awarded a patent to Runte for the basic table design.

Runte said the patent should clear the highly competitive video game field for his firm. So competitive is the field that new games are developed in strict secrecy, and Runte wouldn't say what the firm's latest venture will be.

Fascination Ltd. sells its machines for $1,250 each to entrepreneurs who then place them in hotels, bars or other "people" areas. Users of the games pay 25 or 50 cents for each

"WE GUARANTEE 100 per cent return of their investment after a year or we'll buy the machines back," Runte said. He added the firm has yet to buy back a game.

INTERPORT TO INCOME IN A CONTROL OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPER

The company's sales have more than doubled each year, although neither Runte nor Anderson would give exact figures. The firm outgrew several Des Plaines locations before moving to its current facility at 1950 E Estes Ave., Elk Grove Village.

Runte said his firm is developing a game for home use, which would cost in the $100 range.

Also in the future is a possible national tournament, much like the pinball contests which currently are popu lar. Runte said he plans to offer a Cadillac as first prize.

Each game brain or "logic board" is tested visually.

Handcrafted cabinetry houses the games in plush exterior.

Ask opinion on reserve officers' arrest power

by STIRLING MORITA

Schaumburg Police Chief Maritin Conroy is seeking a legal opinion on arrest powers of village reserve policemen after a judge last week dismissed traffic charges filed by a reserve officer.

Jerome T. Burke, associate Cook County Circuit Court judge, ruled Feb. 10 Raymond Enama, a Schaumburg reserve police officer, was acting outside the scope of state statutes when he arrested a Hoffman Estates man in July 1975 for four traffic offenses at Schaumburg and Spring-

In the Des Plaines branch of Circuit Court, Burke dismissed charges of driving while intoxicated, driving with a suspended driver's license, unlawful use of a driver's license and speeding that had been filed against Joel Rodriguez, 20, of 361. Princeton St.

IT WAS THE FIRST time a judge had ruled against the use of Schaumburg police reserves, Conroy said. It is also believed to be one of the first such rulings in the area.

Burke said the ruling was for "one criminal case only" and that it was not intended to tell the village what to do with its reserve force.

"I lon't know what impact it will have," Burke said.

Conroy said he has written a letter to Village Atty. Jack Siegel, seeking opinion on the legality of reserve officers' arrests. He said he asked Siegel

Sabbath, parade don't mix

The Bicentennial celebration in Hoff- conflict has yet to be resolved. man Estates and the Sabbath may not mix this year.

The conflict surrounds the village's July 4 parade and the problems it will create for some churches, particularly those along the parade route on Illinois Boulevard

"July 4 just nappens to fall in this Bicentennial Year on a Sunday, and the planned parade route will mean blockades cordoning off access to some churches, including St. Hubert's Catholic Church, 126 Grand Canyon St., Church of the Holy Innocents, 238 Illinois Blvd. and First Baptist Church, 300 Illinois Blvd.

Members of the Schaumburg Township Clergy Council aren't happy about the situation and have been talking to village officials and the Fourth of July committee, but the

CLERGYMEN HAVE declined to comment until after a meeting planned Thursday to discuss the pre-

The problem might seemingly be remedied by switching the parade time or celebrating the Bicentennial on Monday, July 5. But Ralph Allen of the Independence Day committee says it's not that easy.

Allen says the 9:45 a.m. parade has been held on July 4 for the past 17 years except in 1971 when, according to Allen, it was postponed to July 5 because of construction work along IIlinois Boulevard.

But, the clergymen point out, July 4, 1971 also happened to be a Sunday, and they contend the postponing of that celebration is adequate precedent for a delay this year, too.

According to Allen, however, if the day is changed, "90 per cent of the people would be standing out there waiting for the parade anyway. How would we get the word out to them?"

And the route shouldn't be changed, he believes, because the 9-mile distance along Illinois "is ideal."

"I'M COMMITTED to everyone," Allen says, citing some $3,000 in contracts for drum and bugle corps which are already reserved for the July 4 date.

"If we don't hold to these contracts. they can turn around and sue us," Allen says. "You have to remember we started working on this July 4th parade the day after the last one and it's not fair to tell us five months before the parade we've got to change

So it might be tough to resolve this dilemma, unless, of course, it rains on July 4.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Ford Tuesday placed all intelligence operations under the management of CIA director George Bush, and created an independent, three-man White House board to safeguard against intelligence-gathering abuses.

Amouncing a series of major reforms at the outset of a nationally broadcast news conference at the White House, the President asked Congress to outlaw assassination attempts by U.S. intelligence agencies against foreign heads of state and to make it a federal crime for agency employes to leak secret information.

In the meantime, Conroy added, the reserve program, which has been in existence for about 16 years and includes 15 men, will continue.

Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 and Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 also will begin school Sept. 1.

A course in law enforcement will be offered to Dist. 211 students in 1976-77 in cooperation with High School Dist. 214 and Harper College.

The course will be taught at the college by Harper instructors, and high school students will receive high school credit for it. The course is designed to provide an overview of the operation of the justice system, including law enforcement agencies, the court system and the correctional system. Guest speakers and field trips will be included in the class.

The board also renewed contracts with Harper to allow students to attend Survey of Engineering Technology, Health Occupations, Computer Concepts and Programming and Introduction to Food Services courses.

Mayor Meyer says:

Panel appointments good regardless of city vote

by JERRY THOMAS

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland J. Meyer Tuesday charged that greenhorn junior aklerman is misleading city resident."

Meyer criticized Ald. Raymond Neuckranz, 1st, and disputed his statement that all city appointments would expire in 1977 together with the mayor's and other elected officials' terms if residents vote April 3 to abandon city council representation by wards.

"He's a greenhorn junior alderman. Either he doesn't know what he is talk ing about or he's deliberately trying to mislead the residents," Meyer said.

'No matter what happens to my office, whether I drop dead today or my term expires in 1977, those people that I have appointed to commissions and boards such as the library or zoning board or police and fire commissions. will continue to serve out their full terms," Meyer said.

MEYER SAID THE only appointments that would expire with his term are those of the major department

"If the mayor has the city attorney's advice on the matter, I may have been mistaken," Neuckranz said Tuesday. "I stand corrected in that case. However, I never intended to mislead the residents," he said.

"I based my statement on what I read in the Illinois Municipal Handbook and the State Statutes, Chap. 24, Arnele 3-7-2, that said a mayor cannot appoint people to terms longer than his." Neuckranz said.

"I was attempting to give as much information about the upcoming April 3 referendum to residents as 1 was able. That's more than the mayor has done," Neuckranz said.

City Atty. Donald Rose Tuesday confirmed Meyer's statement. "The mayor cannot appoint a major department head to a longer term than his office. Department heads such as the fire chief or myself, or city engineer hold our positions only while the mayor that made the appointments holds

"HOWEVER ALL other appointments to the city boards or commissions are by term, with some terms as long as seven years," Rose said. Those terms of office are not affected by the mayor's term of office and do not expire when his term expires," he added.

Neuckranz's statement came Monday when he expressed concern that city residents are not being informed about the importance of voting on both questions in the planned April 3 managerial referendum.

The referendum will ask voters to decide if they wish to adopt a strong city manager-council form of government and continue to elect aldermen from wards.

Neuckranz said he believes that a simple majority vote on the second question is not enough to maintain the present council makeup and that a failure to gain a majority of the total votes cast could end ward elections.

He said that this would then lead to the expiration of the terms of the mayor and ten eldermen in 1977 and an election of a new mayor and four council men at large:

Suit asks return of budget veto

by WANDALYN RICE

Suburban commissioners on the Cook County Board will regain their veto power over the county's multimillion dollar budget if a suit filed in Cook County Circuit Court by an Evanston attorney is successful.

The suit also may have major effects on the way the county will be able to use the home-rule power granted under the 1970 Illinois Constitution, a power widely believed to give the county board almost unlimited taxing authority.

The suit, filed by John T. Allen Jr., challenges the legality of county board action last fall, which changed the requirement for approving the county's expenditures from a twothirds to a simple majority.

Under the two-thirds majority, which was required by state law, the six suburban Republican commissioners had a veto over county expenditures, even if the expenditures had the unanimous support of the county board's 10 Chicago Democrats.

THE SUBURBAN Republicans had won that veto power in 1974 when a federal court ruled that the "one-man, (Continued on Page 4)

Building chief suggests hiring housing inspector

Rolling Meadows building director John Hennessy recommended the city hire a housing inspector to investigate the rising number of complaints from apartment dwellers on unsafe and unsanitary living conditions.

Hennessy Tuesday in a report to the city public works, building and zoning committee said the department has attempted for two years to keep up with various complaints from apartment tenants.

Complaints are mainly about heating and ventilating problems, garbage, dogs running on public property and luck of good housekeeping or maintenance, he sald.

Ford tells major intelligence reforms

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Ford Tuesday placed all intelligence operations under the management of CIA director George Bush, and created an independent, three-man White House board to safeguard against intelligence-gathering abuses.

Announcing a series of major reforms at the outset of a nationally broadcast news conference at the White House, the President asked Congress to outlaw assassination attempts by U.S. intelligence agencies against foreign heads of state and to make it a federal crime for agency employes to leak secret information.

Ford also said ne was issuing a comprehensive set of legally binding guidelines intended to provide "stringent protections for the rights of American citizens" against illegal domestic intelligence activities.

Lawsuit to test county's power of home-rule

by WANDALYN RICE

Suburban commissioners on the Cook County Board will regain their veto power over the county's multimillion dollar budget if a suit filed in Cook County Circuit Court by an Evanston attorney is successful.

The sult also may have major effects on the way the county will be able to use the home-rule power granted under the 1970 Illinois Constitution, a power widely believed to give the county board almost unlimited taxing authority.

The suit, filed by John T. Allen Jr., challenges the legality of county board action last fall, which changed the requirement for approving the county's expenditures from a twothirds to a simple majority.

Under the two-thirds majority, which was required by state law, the six suburban Republican commissioners had a veto over county expenditures, even if the expenditures had the unanimous support of the county board's 10 Chicago Democrats.

THE SUBURBAN Republicans had won that veto power in 1974 when a federal court ruled that the "one-man, one-vote" requirement meant the suburbs must have six members on the board.

Last fall the county board's Democratic majority changed the twothirds requirement, saying the county's home-rule power gave it the right to overrule the state statute with a county ordinance. The Republican commissioners opposed the action.

Thomas Brannigan, Allen's attorney, said the suit challenging the ordinance is a class action suit on behalf of all the taxpayers in the county.

Brannigan said he will argue that the ordinance denies suburban taxpayers equal protection of the law under the U.S. constitution, that the county's home-rule power is not broad enough to allow it to overrule a state statute and that proper notice of the proposed ordinance was not given before it was approved.

In a brief filed with the suit, Brannigan says the action deprives the suburban commissioners and their constituents "of an equally effective voice and meaningful representation on the Cook County board."

BRANNIGN SAID if the court rules the county cannot overrule a state statute under home rule, "it would change pretty substantially what home-rule units think they can do."

He said he will argue that because the Illinois Supreme Court held that the county could not collect property taxes in four installments, because a state law called for two installments, that the county does not have the power to overrule a state law.

A spoksman for County Board Pres. George W. Dunne said the county "will defend the legality of our ac-

Suburban commissioners, who have been studying the possibility of their own suit challenging the county board action ,said they are studying the suit to see whether they can join it.

COMR. CARL HANSEN of Elk Grove Village said, "We have to make sure the suit is strong enough to support our position." He said studying the legal options open to the suburban commissioners under the suit "is an item of No. 1 priority."

Brannigan said he does not know what the suburban commissioners can do to support the suit. "They are welcome to do anything they can," he

Brannigan said he and Allen are prepared to appeal the case to the state Supreme Court if necessary. County officials have until early March to file replies to the suit before arguments can be heard by Circuit Court Judge Walter P. Dahl.

RIVERA SAID the track probably would have lost money with the proposed July 4 racing. The Village of Arlington Heights would have received more than $3,500 that day with its new 10 cent head tax on each paid admission, he said.

TERRY'S BIGGEST enterprise to date has been a one-time Hallmark Cards commercial that ran earlier this month. Why put up with hours of valentinepunching and hot lights? Is it the money? The thrill of knowing that 30 million people will see your son reaching for a Quaker Oats cookie? Or just old-fashioned parental pride?

"I certainly don't think of myself as a pushy stage mother," Mrs. Shields says with a smile. "Terry leads a very simple life right now, and the modeling provides a stimulation that he wouldn't have otherwise."

"Right now, he's not involved enough that it's a bother," she adds. Being able to ride a bike by himself is much more important to him than this, and that's the way it should be."

As for Terry himself, those hot lights are compensated by the fun of wearing an "I'm Mud" T-shirt for a hardware store and taking center stage in a local bridal show.

"I really stole the show," the ringbearer says with a grin. "I stepped on the bride's dress when I wasn't look-

Big grant asked for museum here

Five grant applications, including a request for $75,000 to rehabilitate a historical museum, will be submitted by the Village of Palatine to Cook County.

The applications, which total $240,000, were approved by the village board this week The federal funds are available through the Housing and Community Develoment Act and are administered through the county.

Steven Lenet, director of planning and zoning, told the board each of the five projects qualify for funds, but the county may decide to fund only part of the requests, or none at all.

The grant applications include requests for:

• $75,000 to rehabilitate and refurbish a historicai mjseum.

• $10,000 to lower curbs and install ramps for the elderly in the central business district. • $75,000 to gather and analyze data prepare an intergovernmental agreement between Palatine, Inverness and Schaumburg on annexation policy, future boundaries and

• $30,000 for flood monitoring and an early flood warning system.

• $50,000 to provide matching funds as an incentive for private businesses in the central business district to make improvements in the area.

Lenet said the museum grant would only be used if the historical society acquires title to the house at 224 E. Palatine Rd., which will be converted into a museum. The building is being purchased for $48,000, with funds to be donated from a communitywide fundroising campaign.

The Bicentennial Commission, which undertook the project, planned to seek an additional $12,000 in donations to rehabilitate the building.

Lenet said the $75,000 grant would be used to bring the building back to its original condition. He said an ar-(Continued on Page 4)

Mortgage foreclosure forces sale

Countryside shop mall bought by Chicago bank

The Countryside Mall commercial area has been purchased by the Contiwinental Bank following foreclosure on the property last month because of delinquent mortgage payments.

The Chlcago bank, which held the mortgage on the property, was the only bidder for the 13.3 acres, which includes a shopping center, office building, restaurant and day care center at Northwest Highway and Countryside Drive.

Robert H. Weitzman, vice president of the bank and group head of the Continental Illinois Investment Trust Real Estate Trust, said no changes are planned at the complex.

RANDHURST MANAGEMENT Corp. will continue to manage the area, Weitzman said. "We feel Randhurst has done an outstanding job the complex Sept. 1," he said. "We want to correct the problems there and try to move toward complete

Weitzman said the amount of the mortgage delinquency probably kept potential bidders from making an offer for the complex

WEITZMAN SAID the payment delinquency was "a very sizeable amount" and the money needed to bring the account up to date would have had to have been considered by a potential bidder.

The complex was owned by KK & Co, a partnership including L F Draper and Associates, developer of Weitzman said the bank bid $10,000 on the property as well as agreeing to take over the $4 million mortgage. The commercial area is worth about $4 2 million.

A poor real estate market and lack of good management at the complex were blamed by Weitzman for the problems with meeting financial obligations. "The bank took action to protect its investment," Weitzman said of the foreclosure.

THE COMPLEX has about 15 stores, including a Treasure Island supermarket, one-story and two-story office buildings, The Greenhouse Restaurant, which seats about 225, and a day care center. The shopping center opened in February 1974.

The commercial area is part of a 100-acre development built by Draper

The development was annexed to Palatine last year and provides about $30,000 annually in sale tax revenue to

Suburbs may regain veto

Suit to test county board power

by WANDALYN RICE

Suburban commissioners on the Cook County Board will regain their veto power over the county's multimillion dollar budget if a suit filed in Cook County Circuit Court by an Evansion attorney is successful.

The suit also may have major effects on the way the county will be able to use the home-rule power granted under the 1970 Illinois Constitution, a power widely believed to give the county board almost unlimited taxing authority.

The suit, filed by John T. Allen Jr., challenges the legality of county board action last fall, which changed the requirement for approving the county's expenditures from a twothirds to a simple majority.

Under the two-thirds majority, which was required by state law, the six suburban Republican commissioners had a veto over county expenditures, even if the expenditures had the unanimous support of the county board's 10 Chicago Democrats.

THE SUBURBAN Republicans had won that veto power in 1974 when a federal court ruled that the "one-man, one-vote" requirement meant the suburbs must have six members on the cratic majority changed the twothirds requirement, saying the county's home-rule power gave it the right to overrule the state statute with a county ordinance. The Republican commissioners opposed the action.

Thomas Brannigan, Allen's attorney, said the suit challenging the ordinance is a class action suit on behalf of all the taxpayers in the county.

Brannigan said he will argue that the ordinance denies súburban taxpayers equal protection of the law under the U.S. constitution, that the county's home-rule power is not broad enough to allow it to overrule a state statute and that proper notice of the proposed ordinance was not given before it was approved.

In a brief filed with the suit. Brannigan says the action deprives the suburban commissioners and their constituents "of an equally effective voice and meaningful representation on the Cook County board."

BRANNIGN SAID if the court rules the county cannot overrule a state statute under home rule, "it would change pretty substantially what home-rule units think they can do."

He said he will argue that because the Illinois Supreme Court held that the county could not collect property taxes in four installments, because a state law called for two installments, that the county does not have the power to overrule a state law.

A spoksman for County Board Pres. George W. Dunne said the county "will defend the legality of our actron.'

Suburban commissioners, who have been studying the possibility of their own suit challenging the county board action ,said they are studying the suit to see whether they can join it.

COMR. CARL HANSEN of Elk Grove Village said, "We have to make sure the suit is strong enough to support our position." He said studying the legal options open to the suburban commissioners under the suit "is an item of No. 1 priority."

Brannigan said he does not know what the suburban commissioners can do to support the suit. "They are welcome to do anything they can," he

Brannigan said he and Allen are prepared to appeal the case to the state Supreme Court if necessary. County officials have until early March to file replies to the suit before arguments can be heard by Circuit Court Judge Walter P. Dahl.

Mason Reese, move over. Buffalo Grove has its own red-haired moppet in 5-year-old Terry Shields, and while the freckle-faced youngster isn't headed for Hollywood yet, he's building a list of credits that range from catalogs to commercials.

Terry, the son of Patrick and Mary Lou Shiekis, 1016 Whitehall Ln., has been modeling off and on since August for a fee of approximately $30 an hour. He has appeared in fashion shows, a Marshall Field catalog and even a national television spot for the Hallmark Hall of Fame.

Visits to three Chicago modeling agencies in March have led to a variety of assignments for Terry, an engaging and taikative preschooler, who says he likes to see himself in magazines but objects to "all those lights they made me bot, real hot."

TERRY'S BIGGEST enterprise to date has been a one-time Hallmark Cards commercial that ran earlier this month. For "an instant" of air time, Terry spent two full days punching valentines in a downtown studio. He also spent three hours setting up for a Quaker Oats advertisement in Parade magazine, which wasn't much fun because "they only let me take bites of the cookie and not the whole thing." Terry says. Why put up with hours of valentine-punching and hot lights? Is it the money? The thrill of knowing that 30 million people will see your son reaching for a Quaker Oats cookie? Or just old-fashioned parental pride? "I certainly don't think of myself as

Village to review cost of bonds for well plan Palatine officials will review the cost of issuing $1.26 million in general obligation bonds to finance completion two new village water wells. The board directed Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig to determine the cost of preparing the bond package with Paul Speer and Associates, financial consultants. Village Atty. Bradley Glass will be asked to prepare an ordinance calling for the general obligation bonds to be paid with water department revenue rather than through a tax levy.

The board voted to proceed with the general obligation bond procedure after a motion to issue revenue bonds to finance the work failed. REVENUE BONDS carry a higher interest rate than general obligation bonds but are paid through money generated from the system. General obligation bonds are paid through a real estate tax levy which can be eliminated or reduced.

Harwig said the village could save an estimated $228,000 in interest charges on a 30-year general obligation bond package over a similar 30-year revenue bond pakcage. Officials from Speer have said the village can issue general obligation bonds and pay them off with revenue from the water department fund if the normal tax levy is abated each year. Harwig said the question which must be answered is whether the levy must be issued the first year.

He said Speer officials have said normally the tax to pay off the bonds can be eliminated or reduced the first year but an analysis of the water fund and the bond sale must be made before a definite answer can be given.

TRUSTEE Bryan P. Coughlin criticized the board for failing to let voters decide if they would prefer to pay for their water by a real estate tax or proceed with the current method of charging a metered rate. The trustee said if the cost was made part of the real estate tax bill, it could be deducted on the federal income tax form,

"I think this shows a cavalier attitude toward the voters by not letting them decide how they want to pay for their water supply." Coughlin said.

Trustee Fred Zajone said the procedure to issue general obligation bonds and then finance them through revenue from the system has not always been successful.

"I think we're treading on very, very thin ice and we may be being led down the garden path to think there is enough revenue there to pay for it," Zajone said.

ABOUT $132,000 remains to be paid on work for Well 9, located on the Countryside development at Northwest Highway and Countryside Drive. About $1.1 million is needed to build Well 10, located on the Sellergren development, Northwest Highway and Hicks Road.

Harwig said data indicates the tenth well is needed. He said the well and its reservoir are needed to meet anticinated future water demands.

"If you don't provide for the needs of the system under a bad set of circumstances, you may be playing Russian roulette," Harwig said.

THE VILLAGE manager said the current village water system is deficient in water storage by about 1.15 million gallons. He said storage is necessary for peak consumption days when the pumping capacity cannot meet supply needs.

Harwig said the system including Well 9 in operation meets village demands if there is no drain from fires. Deficiencies result if wells are broken and a fire exists, Harwig added.

Officials said during the past six years, one or more wells has broken

Florence Parkhurst, historical society president, told the board the $12,000 figure would not be enough to tion. The Bicentennial Commission also planned to seek only volunteer help from a local architect to make restoration plans for the building.

LENET SAID THE grant cannot be used to pay for acquisition of the building. It can only be used for restoration work if the quired, he said.

Trustee Bryan P. Coughlin objected to the application because he said he did not feel it is a proper use of tax funds.

Coughlin also voted against the application for funds to develop an intergovernmental boundary agreement between Palatine, Inverness and Schaumburg.

Lenet said the money would be used in part to work on completion of the village's master plan, to determine where the village's final boundaries will be.

Coughlin has said in the past he believes the cost of the project is out of line with other planning expenses. He said, as an example, the village is spending only $15,000 to update its master plan.

The $50,000 grant for matching funds would be used to encourage businesses to make improvements on their own. The village would provide $1 for every $2 spent by a local business for property improvements.

Suburban commissioners on the Cook County Board will regain their veto power over the county's multimillion dollar budget if a suit filed in Cook County Circuit Court by an Evanston attorney is successful.

The suit also may have major effects on the way the county will be able to use the home-rule power granted under the 1970 Illinois Constitution, a power widely believed to six suburban Republican commissiongive the county board almost unlimited taxing authority.

The suit, filed by John T. Allen Jr., challenges the legality of county board action last fall, which changed the requirement for approving the county's expenditures from a twothirds to a simple majority.

Under the two-thirds majority, which was required by state law, the ers had a veto over county expenditures, even if the expenditures had the unanimous support of the county board's 10 Chicago Democrats.

THE SUBURBAN Republicans had won that veto power in 1974 when a federal court ruled that the "one-man, one-vote" requirement meant the suburbs must have six members on the

Last fall the county board's Democratic majority changed the twothirds requirement, saying the county's home-rule power gave it the right to overrule the state statute with a county ordinance. The Republican commissioners opposed the action.

Brannigan said he will argue that the ordinance denies suburban taxpayers equal protection of the law under the U.S. constitution, that the county's home-rule power is not broad enough to allow it to overrule a state statute and that proper notice of the proposed ordinance was not given before it was approved.

In a brief filed with the suit, Brannigan says the action deprives the suburban commissioners and their constituents "of an equally effective voice and meaningful representation on the Cook County board."

Suburban commissioners, who have been studying the possibility of their own suit challenging the county board action ,said they are studying the suit to see whether they can join it.

Court Judge Walter P. Dahl.

Thomas Brannigan, Allen's attorney, said the suit challenging the ordinance is a class action suit on behalf of all the taxpayers in the county.

He said he will argue that because the Illinois Supreme Court held that the county could not collect property taxes in four installments, because a state law called for two installments, that the county does not have the power to overrule a state law.

COMR. CARL HANSEN of Elk Grove Village said, "We have to make sure the suit is strong enough to support our position." He said studying the legal options open to the suburban commissioners under the suit "is an item of No. 1 priority."

Brannigan said he does not know what the suburban commissioners can do to support the suit. "They are welcome to do anything they can," he

Brannigan said he and Allen are prepared to appeal the case to the state Supreme Court if necessary. County officials have until early March to file replies to the suit before arguments can be heard by Circuit

Games right out of space

by TOM VON MALDER One by-product of the space race is helping Bob Runte and Bob Anderson turn a 21/2-year-old idea into a fast growing international business.

Dist. 23 nixes after-school activity buses

The Prospect Heights Dist, 23 Board of Education has rejected a proposal to schedule activity buses for children who remain at school for extra-curricular activities.

The board received a report last week from James Hendren, business manager, outlining the costs of employing one or more activity buses but rejected the idea primarily because of the high cost. Hendren said no state funding was available for such a bus, and the service was not mandated by the state.

The activity bus issue is not finished, however. The board discussed the idea of surveying parents on their paying for the children to ride an activity bus, and the possibilities will continue to be discussed in the district's planning committee.

In addition, the board appropriated $500 to be used by district students to finance an April 10 Bicentennial Concert at Hersey High School, 1908 E. Thomas Ave., Arlington Heights.

Runte and Anderson are president and vice president respectively of Fascination Ltd., manufacturers of video table games which one is likely to find in bars, hotels and motels throughout the world.

"Without the space race we wouldn't be sitting here," Runte said, explaining how space industry-developed solid state circuitry enables dozens of tubes to be replaced by a tiny

"chip," smaller then a pin head. WHILE THE "logic board" is the brain of the video games, a monitor used in the field of medicine gives them life - another example of the adaptability of electronic advances.

Fascination Ltd. ploneered the concept of video games in cocktail tables. Anderson said the firm started Aug. 28, 1973 in his living room. The U.S. Patent Office last November awarded a patent to Runte for the basic table

Runte said the patent should clear the highly competitive video game field for his firm. So competitive is the field that new games are devel-

to buy back a game. The company's sales have more than doubled each year, although neither Runte nor Anderson would give exact figures. The firm outgrew several Des Plaines locations before moving to its current facility at 1950 E. Estes Ave., Elk Grove Village.

Runte said his firm is developing a game for home use, which would cost in the $100 range.

Also in the future is a possible national tournament, much like the pinball contests which currently are popu lar. Runte said he plans to offer a Cadillac as first prize.
